British Unemployed Battle Police In London Streets

Rioters Make Try To Enter Parliament

Demonstration Is Organized By Labor Councils

LONDON (AP)—In the shadow of Big Ben, mounted police Tuesday drove back 3,000 rioting jobless men and women who fought their way to the main door of Parliament.

It took 500 police to stop the bitterest street battle London has seen in years. And for the first time in modern history, a crowd almost forced its way into the building.

The demonstrators from economically depressed areas shouted for the ouster of the Conservative government and demanded to be allowed into the building to make their complaints to Britain's lawmakers.

They fought, cursed and threw horse manure and lighted cigarettes at the police. Nine rioters were arrested.

Nine Are Arrested

Screaming encouragement to each other, the rioters first overran hastily summoned police reserves on foot in a swaying battle and reached St. Stephen's entrance—the Gothic door into the building.

Then mounted police arrived, their horses rearing and snorting. Slowly the police began to gain control. The demonstrators began shouting "You fascist swine! This is Gestapoism!"

As they were crowded back into the street separating Parliament from Westminster Abbey, the rioters kicked and hammered cars passing by, including automobiles belonging to members of Parliament.

Demonstrations are not allowed within the vicinity of Parliament. Traditionally, this regulation had been observed even in times of great political stress.

Climb On Building

At one time some of the rioters climbed upon the heraldic stone lions before the police dragged them down.

The jobless poured into London by plane, train and bus from Northern Ireland, Scotland and north England—all areas of high unemployment.

The move on London was organized by local trades union councils but was billed as a peaceful attempt to lobby members of the House of Commons. Some of the demonstrators wore nuclear disarmament badges and waved Communist pamphlets.

After the main battle was over some of the demonstrators staged a sitdown in the street before the police moved them on. Others lingered in Parliament Square and engaged in sullen clashes with individual policemen.

Britain's unemployment rate is lower than the American figure of 6 per cent. But the misery is not evenly distributed.

Engravers Hold Key In News Strike

320 Members Can Return Papers To Streets Of N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — A 109-day blackout of eight major New York newspapers was within one little word of settlement Tuesday.

All that was required to get the papers back on the streets was for 320 striking AFL-CIO photoengravers to say yes to a peace formula laid down by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Publishers already had accepted the mayor's terms, with a warning that "we cannot and will not enlarge upon the mayor's proposal, and all publishers agree there is no purpose to be served by further negotiations."

Leaders of New York Photoengravers Local 1 still were to decide whether to accept the formula and recommend it for membership ratification.

Obviously hopeful, Wagner already had closed his Commodore Hotel headquarters where for several weeks he has been mediating and umpiring a series of contract disputes within the newspaper industry.

The mayor proposed to the engravers essentially the same terms accepted by the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union and used as a basis for settlement with five other newspaper craft unions.

The formula would give the engravers a $12.63 a week increase contract package over two years, with an increase of $6.50 in wages and fringe benefits the first year and $6.13 the second.

Wagner also proposed to resolve a deadlock over the photoengravers work week by reducing it in the second year of the contract from 36¼ to 35 hours—the same terms worked out with the printers.

Navy Seeking More Negroes As Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the first two Negro officers tapped for the Naval War College disclosed Tuesday the Navy wants to attract qualified Negroes into its officer corps.

But Lt. Cmdr. George I. Thompson of Los Angeles indicated the going is slow, apparently because of past history in which Negroes did not fare too well.

"It's as if we had the door shut for 180-odd years," he told a reporter. "We're trying to convince them the door is open."

Thompson, 34, a UCLA graduate concentrating on officer recruitment, has been picked to attend a course at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I. starting next fall.

The other Negro officer is Cmdr. Samuel L. Gravely Jr., 40, highest ranking Negro in the regular Navy. Gravely is skipper of the escort vessel Falgout based at Pearl Harbor.

Only the most promising of the Navy's officers are picked for the college, where they are groomed for bigger things.

Thompson, now attached to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, is part of a team of both white and Negro officers that has been breaking ground with educators of predominantly Negro colleges.

"We feel it is necessary to talk to the educators," Thompson said. "Some of them had pretty raw experiences in the last war."

The next step, Thompson indicated, would be to follow up with direct recruiting efforts among Negro college men.

He stressed there are no racial quotas, that the Navy needs good officers and considers Negro college men an untapped source.

Thompson, a 10-year Navy veteran, said he has encountered more prejudice outside the Navy than in the service.

"Trying to find a house in Newport was something of a problem," he said, "but we finally managed all right."

Thompson said he has had only the briefest contact with Gravely but hopes to get to know the older officer better when both are attending courses at the college.

Director Bell Lauds Report By Gen. Clay

Says Some Nations No Longer Need U.S. Assistance

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The man who runs U.S. foreign aid gave a ringing endorsement Tuesday to the committee that criticized it.

And, following the line of the Clay committee's recommendations, Administrator David Bell of the Agency for International Development predicted the end of U.S. economic aid to Greece, Israel and Nationalist China in three to four years; and to Libya, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela after that.

Bell gave his endorsement of the Clay committee in a talk to the Magazine Publishers Association. The committee, headed by retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, made public its report to Kennedy last Saturday.

"The judgments and policies and attitudes that they expressed are sound, appropriate and proper," Bell said. "We do not have any substantial difference of judgments on the main line of the committee's policy recommendations."

Half Billion Cut

The committee said that "if our criteria were now in effect, present programs would be reduced by approximately $500 million."

But Bell said the committee, in other parts of the report, recommended a boost in assistance to some areas.

"There is no basis to derive any judgment on what they think of the budget request that President Kennedy is making," Bell said.

Outlines New Look

Bell, in his talk outlined AID's new look in foreign aid.

He said the program would have three main features:

1. There would be an end in sight to assistance programs in each country. He said three countries—Greece, Israel and Nationalist China—soon will be on top of their economic problems and no longer will need U.S. assistance. He named three others—Libya, Venezuela and Saudi Arabia — which, because of their lucrative oil resources, will be able to help themselves develop without U.S. aid.

But Bell named other countries —Korea, India, Pakistan and Bolivia—where he said the problems are such that "it will take 5, 10 or more years for them to achieve economic self support."

2. AID would recognize that the job must be done from the inside. "If the leaders are not prepared to take the necessary measures now," Bell said, "outside help won't do any good."

He cited a few countries—India, Pakistan, Nigeria, and Colombia —that "pursue institutional and fiscal policies that make sense."

Need Understanding

Bell said there are a great number of countries that have not done a good job of mobilizing their resources and understanding their own problems. He said AID's job in such cases can be no more than an effort to help them understand their problems.

He named Brazil as a case of a country now starting, with U.S. help, to pursue proper fiscal policies which, if successful, could later lead to more definite economic aid.

3. The United States would encourage development by private investment, rather than by government. "We are trying to persuade countries to change their policies on how they treat private

Witch Doctor Sentenced For Killing Girl

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland (UPI)—A man who boasted he turned himself into a crocodile with witch doctor magic was sentenced to death Tuesday for killing an 8-year-old girl in a river.

Elard Chipandale, 35, received the death sentence as did Odreck Kasoci, 33, the grandfather of the victim, Mponde Lyton. The court ruled that Kasoci hired Chipandale to kill the girl.

Chief Justice Sir Edgar Unsworth, in sentencing Chipandale, said Chipandale truly believed in magical crocodiles but he was fully aware of what he was doing, was sane and knew that what he did was wrong when the crime was committed in 1959.

The court heard testimony that Chipandale put on some crocodile skins, dragged the girl into a river, stabbed her and broke her arm. In court he insisted he was actually a crocodile at the time and broke her arm with his tail and killed her with his claws.

Several witnesses testified that they believed Chipandale's boast that he could change himself into a "friendly crocodile" with magic secrets learned from witch doctor's ghost, a former uncle. He said he could transform himself by tying certain magic twigs and bark to his loins.

He testified that Kasoci offered him money to kill the girl but at first he refused because "I was a friendly crocodile who ate only fish." But later he said he killed the girl with his teeth "as big as a man's hand" and broke her arm with "a powerful swish of my tail."

He testified he had agreed to kill the girl finally for $12.60 — which is how the crime came to light. Chipandale sued Kasoci in a native court for the blood money, claiming Kasoci paid him only $1.40. A native policeman reported the case to authorities.

U.S.-Russia Resume Berlin Discussions

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—New U.S.-Soviet talks on the long-deadlocked Berlin issue were opened Tuesday in what was officially described as a friendly and business-like atmosphere.

No new proposals were made by either side, but it was agreed to continue the discussions.

The first meeting between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin took place at the State Department and lasted an hour.

State Department press officer Lincoln White then announced: "This was the first preliminary conversation in the resumed exploratory talks on Germany and Berlin.

"The atmosphere was friendly and businesslike. There will be further discussions. No specific date has yet been set.

"No new proposals were made by either side. No papers were exchanged."

Despite the absence of any new proposals, White said, "It is a little early in the game to determine whether these talks can be successful or not."

Dobrynin took the line that the discussions could go on for some time.

"We just began the exchange of opinion about the German and Berlin situation" and this is "a bit question," Dobrynin said.

The Russians asked for a resumption of the talks, which were suspended last fall during the Cuban crisis.

Dobrynin was smiling, but noncommital, as he went into Rusk's office. He was accompanied by an embassy counselor, Georgi Kornienko.

Sitting in with Rusk were East-West affairs adviser Llewellyn Thompson, and Martin Hillenbrand, head of a State Department task force on Berlin.

U.S. authorities said they had no indications that Moscow was offering new proposals more acceptable to the West than those which the West has turned down in the past.

Bidault Slips Into Portugal From Germany

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Traveling under an assumed name, former French Premier Georges Bidault slipped into Portugal from West Germany Tuesday police said. But he faced new obstacles in his search for a base to carry on his campaign against French President Charles de Gaulle.

The Foreign Ministry said the onetime associate of De Gaulle in the wartime fight against the Nazis will not be allowed to undertake any political activity. A police official said Portugal is anxious to safeguard good relations with France.

The same sort of restrictions on his political activity prompted Bidault to quit his haven in West Germany.

There was speculation that Bidault, 63, titular chief of the Council of National Resistance (CNR), would try to reach some South American country. The CNR is the political arm of the secret army.

The Dutch airliner on which Bidault traveled went on to Brazil, Uruguay, and Argentina, but Bidault and his aide had tickets only to Lisbon.

Boeing Firm Gets Contract For Dyna-Soar

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—The Boeing Co. has been given a $358,076,923 contract by the Air Force for the design, manufacture, and testing of the Dyna-Soar manned-space glider, Washington's senators said Tuesday.

Sens. Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., reported from the nation's capital the award defines the cost of the glider portion of the program through its completion late this decade. Boeing has been working on it more than a year.

The senators said the contract covers air-drop tests from a B52 mother ship at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and orbital flights from Cape Canaveral, Fla., expected to begin in 1965.

A separate contract with the Martin-Marietta Corp. will cover the booster phase of the Dyna-Soar project. The delta-winged glider will be hurled aloft by a Titan III rocket built by Martin.

Magnuson and Jackson said the Boeing contract does not preclude the possible cutback or scrapping of Dyna-Soar by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

McNamara has begun a review of the Dyna-Soar program to determine if it duplicates much of the research work planned for the national space agency's two-man Gemini project.

He recently visited the Boeing plant here and at NASA's manned space center at Houston, Tex. Pentagon sources said a decision might be as much as six months away, however.

Red China Hurls Charges At India

LONDON (UPI) — Communist China accused India Tuesday of new air and ground violations on the border between Sikkim and China and said Peking had made another "serious protest" to New Delhi.

The New China news agency in a report from Peking said the Indians had been crossing the Natu La mountain ridge and repairing defense posts "illegally set up in Chinese territory."

2 Navy Vessels Arrive At Bali Disaster Zone

DENPASAR, Bali, Indonesia (UPI) — Two U.S. Navy vessels moved into Bali's disaster zone Tuesday to remove refugees who have experienced seven days of volcanic terror.

The Navy LST'S were taking aboard 5,000 refugees from coastal towns—the first of a total of 332,000 Balinese whose removal from the island has been recommended by rescuers following the eruption of sacred Mt. Gunung Agung.

The number to be taken off the island would total nearly one out of every five persons under the rescue plan.

Low-lying roads in some districts were flooded. The downpour raised fears that the rainsoaked layer of volcanic ash again may start moving toward the sea, wiping out everything in its path.

V-P Johnson Has No Plans To Seek U.S. Presidency

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said Tuesday night he has no plans now to seek the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency in 1964.

Speaking on a televised news interview, the vice president said who will be nominated in 1964 "will depend on the delegates" to the nominating convention. Speaking for himself, he said he was a "great admirer of the President's leadership, and I have been for a long time."

"I would certainly hope that the delegates who are selected would look with approval upon the work that the President has done, and that I have attempted to do," he said.

Pair Rescued After Plane Crash Had Faith They Would Be Found

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (AP)—Pilot Ralph Flores and Helen Klaben bounced back Tuesday from the effects of their seven-week ordeal in subzero Canadian wilds. A physician said they can leave for home as soon as they wish.

Home to Miss Klaben, 21, is Brooklyn, N.Y. For Flores, 42, flier and electrician, it is San Bruno, Calif.

Dr. Nesta James said that, despite the fractures, malnutrition and exposure that stemmed from the crash of Flores' $7,000 private plane on a British Columbia mountainside Feb.4, the two are in condition to travel when they like.

The doctor added that gangrene in Miss Klaben's broken right foot is not so severe as first feared, though she may lose one or two toes.

The medical remarks contributed to a happy ending that began Sunday when pilot Chuck Hamilton sighted an SOS Flores had stamped out in the snow, and launched the rescue operations that landed Flores and the girl in a Whitehorse hospital.

"God must have decided it was time for us to be saved," said Miss Klaben, spirited and smiling after the battle with hunger and cold that cut her normally plump figure to less than 100 pounds.

"I had faith we were going to be found," said Flores, father of six.

The bearded pilot lost 40 pounds to about 125.

They had only a fire, Flores' Bible and a book of Robert W. Service's poems on the Yukon for comfort after exhaustion of their food supplies—two cans of fruit, two cans of sardines and two tubes of toothpaste.

Doctors said restriction of activities, because of injuries, and the fact they were well-supplied with clothing helped the two to survive, but they doubted that either could have lived another week.

The plane crash came when Flores was flying to Seattle, Wash., with Miss Klaben as a passenger, from Fairbanks, Alaska. He had completed a contract as an electrician on the U.S. Dewline—district early warning—radar network, and she had finished five months of work as a draftsmen with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Flores said the weather was foggy and snow was falling when he ran into trouble. He was blinded by the clouds and lost contact with the radio navigation range. Flying at 7,000 feet, he dropped to 3,000 feet in an effort to get his bearings.

"I was trying to use the last drop of gas in my tank to get to my destination. When I saw where I was, it was too late.

"I was checking the radio range, looking for the beam and watching the mountain when the center tank ran out of gas. Just as I reached over to switch on the front tank, a wing tip caught the trees.

"We just went inside the trees."

Both were knocked unconscious. Miss Klaben was the first to recover.

"I woke up about half an hour later," she said. "I looked over at Ralph and he looked bad. He was unconscious. I pounded and pounded on Ralph and tried to wake him up.

"I was afraid he would freeze. My foot was trapped in the wreckage.

"I shouted 'Wake up! Wake up! Finally he regained consciousness."

"We started a fire to keep warm," Miss Klaben said. "We had clothes (in her case five pairs of slacks), but no blankets.

"Some days we could hear the drone of planes in the distance. Some days we could hear the sound of someone chopping wood and we thought there must be some Indians working nearby.

"But we never had another indication that life was going on."

Flores said he used fires, smoke and a mirror in attempts to attract attention. About 40 planes flew near the crash scene in the seven-week period, but all droned on past.

He sang a lot. Some were religious songs, some popular.

Using his knife, a chisel and a hammer, he fashioned rough snowshoes from branches, bark and twigs. He used them to mush through the heavy snow to a clearing, three miles from the wreckage, where he stamped out an SOS in big letters. That was the distress signal sighted Sunday by Hamilton, from Watson Lake, Y.T.

"I did not lose hope," said Miss Klaben. "The only thing I felt was not being able to understand why the Lord was keeping us so long.

"After our ordeal I now have a belief in God I never thought possible. I don't think we ever would have been found until I understood why we crashed.

"Ralph and I both needed time to think over our lives. He was wonderful. Never once did he lose faith that he would be found. His faith set the example for me to follow all my life."

Flore, said he always carries his Bible with him and both he and Miss Klaben read it through. He is a Mormon lay preacher; she is Jewish.

"After days of howling winds, alternating with still, death-like calm, I heard a plane," recalled Miss Klaben. "The minutes stretched into hours until I could hear the yapping of a dog team racing through the bush."

Two Indian trappers had heeded a report from Hamilton of Flores' plight and rescued him.

"It had been so long since I saw new faces," Flores said.

Hamilton himself rescued Miss Klaben, landing his plane on the closest suitable terrain three miles away and then carrying her piggyback to it.

Soft snow tripped the bush pilot and he fell several times.

"I knew she was in pain," Hamilton said, "but she didn't cry out."

WASHINGTON (AP)—New U.S.-Soviet talks on the long-deadlocked Berlin issue were opened Tuesday in what was officially described as a friendly and business-like atmosphere.

No new proposals were made by either side, but it was agreed to continue the discussions.

The first meeting between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin took place at the State Department and lasted an hour.

State Department press officer Lincoln White then announced: "This was the first preliminary conversation in the resumed exploratory talks on Germany and Berlin.

"The atmosphere was friendly and businesslike. There will be further discussions. No specific date has yet been set.

"No new proposals were made by either side. No papers were exchanged."

Despite the absence of any new proposals, White said, "It is a little early in the game to determine whether these talks can be successful or not."

Dobrynin took the line that the discussions could go on for some time.

"We just began the exchange of opinion about the German and Berlin situation" and this is "a bit question," Dobrynin said.

The Russians asked for a resumption of the talks, which were suspended last fall during the Cuban crisis.

Dobrynin was smiling, but noncommital, as he went into Rusk's office. He was accompanied by an embassy counselor, Georgi Kornienko.

Sitting in with Rusk were East-West affairs adviser Llewellyn Thompson, and Martin Hillenbrand, head of a State Department task force on Berlin.

U.S. authorities said they had no indications that Moscow was offering new proposals more acceptable to the West than those which the West has turned down in the past.

Bidault Slips Into Portugal From Germany

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Traveling under an assumed name, former French Premier Georges Bidault slipped into Portugal from West Germany Tuesday police said. But he faced new obstacles in his search for a base to carry on his campaign against French President Charles de Gaulle.

The Foreign Ministry said the onetime associate of De Gaulle in the wartime fight against the Nazis will not be allowed to undertake any political activity. A police official said Portugal is anxious to safeguard good relations with France.

The same sort of restrictions on his political activity prompted Bidault to quit his haven in West Germany.

There was speculation that Bidault, 63, titular chief of the Council of National Resistance (CNR), would try to reach some South American country. The CNR is the political arm of the secret army.

The Dutch airliner on which Bidault traveled went on to Brazil, Uruguay, and Argentina, but Bidault and his aide had tickets only to Lisbon.

Boeing Firm Gets Contract For Dyna-Soar

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—The Boeing Co. has been given a $358,076,923 contract by the Air Force for the design, manufacture, and testing of the Dyna-Soar manned-space glider, Washington's senators said Tuesday.

Sens. Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., reported from the nation's capital the award defines the cost of the glider portion of the program through its completion late this decade. Boeing has been working on it more than a year.

The senators said the contract covers air-drop tests from a B52 mother ship at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and orbital flights from Cape Canaveral, Fla., expected to begin in 1965.

A separate contract with the Martin-Marietta Corp. will cover the booster phase of the Dyna-Soar project. The delta-winged glider will be hurled aloft by a Titan III rocket built by Martin.

Magnuson and Jackson said the Boeing contract does not preclude the possible cutback or scrapping of Dyna-Soar by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

McNamara has begun a review of the Dyna-Soar program to determine if it duplicates much of the research work planned for the national space agency's two-man Gemini project.

He recently visited the Boeing plant here and at NASA's manned space center at Houston, Tex. Pentagon sources said a decision might be as much as six months away, however.

Red China Hurls Charges At India

LONDON (UPI) — Communist China accused India Tuesday of new air and ground violations on the border between Sikkim and China and said Peking had made another "serious protest" to New Delhi.

The New China news agency in a report from Peking said the Indians had been crossing the Natu La mountain ridge and repairing defense posts "illegally set up in Chinese territory."

2 Navy Vessels Arrive At Bali Disaster Zone

DENPASAR, Bali, Indonesia (UPI) — Two U.S. Navy vessels moved into Bali's disaster zone Tuesday to remove refugees who have experienced seven days of volcanic terror.

The Navy LST'S were taking aboard 5,000 refugees from coastal towns—the first of a total of 332,000 Balinese whose removal from the island has been recommended by rescuers following the eruption of sacred Mt. Gunung Agung.

The number to be taken off the island would total nearly one out of every five persons under the rescue plan.

Low-lying roads in some districts were flooded. The downpour raised fears that the rainsoaked layer of volcanic ash again may start moving toward the sea, wiping out everything in its path.

V-P Johnson Has No Plans To Seek U.S. Presidency

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said Tuesday night he has no plans now to seek the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency in 1964.

Speaking on a televised news interview, the vice president said who will be nominated in 1964 "will depend on the delegates" to the nominating convention. Speaking for himself, he said he was a "great admirer of the President's leadership, and I have been for a long time."

"I would certainly hope that the delegates who are selected would look with approval upon the work that the President has done, and that I have attempted to do," he said.

Pair Rescued After Plane Crash Had Faith They Would Be Found

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (AP)—Pilot Ralph Flores and Helen Klaben bounced back Tuesday from the effects of their seven-week ordeal in subzero Canadian wilds. A physician said they can leave for home as soon as they wish.

Home to Miss Klaben, 21, is Brooklyn, N.Y. For Flores, 42, flier and electrician, it is San Bruno, Calif.

Dr. Nesta James said that, despite the fractures, malnutrition and exposure that stemmed from the crash of Flores' $7,000 private plane on a British Columbia mountainside Feb.4, the two are in condition to travel when they like.

The doctor added that gangrene in Miss Klaben's broken right foot is not so severe as first feared, though she may lose one or two toes.

The medical remarks contributed to a happy ending that began Sunday when pilot Chuck Hamilton sighted an SOS Flores had stamped out in the snow, and launched the rescue operations that landed Flores and the girl in a Whitehorse hospital.

"God must have decided it was time for us to be saved," said Miss Klaben, spirited and smiling after the battle with hunger and cold that cut her normally plump figure to less than 100 pounds.

"I had faith we were going to be found," said Flores, father of six.

The bearded pilot lost 40 pounds to about 125.

They had only a fire, Flores' Bible and a book of Robert W. Service's poems on the Yukon for comfort after exhaustion of their food supplies—two cans of fruit, two cans of sardines and two tubes of toothpaste.

Doctors said restriction of activities, because of injuries, and the fact they were well-supplied with clothing helped the two to survive, but they doubted that either could have lived another week.

The plane crash came when Flores was flying to Seattle, Wash., with Miss Klaben as a passenger, from Fairbanks, Alaska. He had completed a contract as an electrician on the U.S. Dewline—district early warning—radar network, and she had finished five months of work as a draftsmen with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Flores said the weather was foggy and snow was falling when he ran into trouble. He was blinded by the clouds and lost contact with the radio navigation range. Flying at 7,000 feet, he dropped to 3,000 feet in an effort to get his bearings.

"I was trying to use the last drop of gas in my tank to get to my destination. When I saw where I was, it was too late.

"I was checking the radio range, looking for the beam and watching the mountain when the center tank ran out of gas. Just as I reached over to switch on the front tank, a wing tip caught the trees.

"We just went inside the trees."

Both were knocked unconscious. Miss Klaben was the first to recover.

"I woke up about half an hour later," she said. "I looked over at Ralph and he looked bad. He was unconscious. I pounded and pounded on Ralph and tried to wake him up.

"I was afraid he would freeze. My foot was trapped in the wreckage.

"I shouted 'Wake up! Wake up! Finally he regained consciousness."

"We started a fire to keep warm," Miss Klaben said. "We had clothes (in her case five pairs of slacks), but no blankets.

"Some days we could hear the drone of planes in the distance. Some days we could hear the sound of someone chopping wood and we thought there must be some Indians working nearby.

"But we never had another indication that life was going on."

Flores said he used fires, smoke and a mirror in attempts to attract attention. About 40 planes flew near the crash scene in the seven-week period, but all droned on past.

He sang a lot. Some were religious songs, some popular.

Using his knife, a chisel and a hammer, he fashioned rough snowshoes from branches, bark and twigs. He used them to mush through the heavy snow to a clearing, three miles from the wreckage, where he stamped out an SOS in big letters. That was the distress signal sighted Sunday by Hamilton, from Watson Lake, Y.T.

"I did not lose hope," said Miss Klaben. "The only thing I felt was not being able to understand why the Lord was keeping us so long.

"After our ordeal I now have a belief in God I never thought possible. I don't think we ever would have been found until I understood why we crashed.

"Ralph and I both needed time to think over our lives. He was wonderful. Never once did he lose faith that he would be found. His faith set the example for me to follow all my life."

Flores, said he always carries his Bible with him and both he and Miss Klaben read it through. He is a Mormon lay preacher; she is Jewish.

"After days of howling winds, alternating with still, death-like calm, I heard a plane," recalled Miss Klaben. "The minutes stretched into hours until I could hear the yapping of a dog team racing through the bush."

Two Indian trappers had heeded a report from Hamilton of Flores' plight and rescued him.

"It had been so long since I saw new faces," Flores said.

Hamilton himself rescued Miss Klaben, landing his plane on the closest suitable terrain three miles away and then carrying her piggyback to it.

Soft snow tripped the bush pilot and he fell several times.

"I knew she was in pain," Hamilton said, "but she didn't cry out."

Man Swallows His Toothbrush

LUTON, England (UPI)—Philip Richardson, 52, had a fishbone lodged in his throat so he took a toothbrush and dislodged it. But he swallowed the toothbrush.

Richardson tried all sorts of remedies but after three weeks he gave up and went to a doctor Monday. The doctor ordered an x-ray and said an operation probably will be necessary.

"It doesn't hurt," Richardson said. "It's just a little uncomfortable at times. Luckily I can still work. I took a lot of medicine hoping I would be able to get rid of the toothbrush without bothering to go to a doctor. One feels so foolish having to tell a doctor about a thing like this."

Nuclear Fission Is Started In Lab Experiment

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — Nuclear fission occurred accidentally early Tuesday in an experiment at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory and caused a small fire, the laboratory reported.

The fire was contained in a concrete vault and there were no injuries and no danger from radiation, a laboratory spokesman said.

The laboratory is part of the University of California and is supported by the Atomic Energy Commission for which it does research in classified weapons.

A slight amount of radioactive gas escaped from the vault, but radiation checks of the laboratory grounds and the surrounding area showed only a harmless rise in radiation levels, the spokesman said.

The experiment was intended to be a "sub-critical" one in which fission did not occur, the spokesman sad. But the experiment reached the "critical" level and generated heat which caused the fire.

So. Korea Ignores Call For Return To Civil Rule

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korea's military leaders Tuesday brushed aside a U. S. call for a quick end to military government in this country.

A spokesman for strongman Gen. Park Chung Hee said his determination to extend military rule "was not swayed at all" by the U. S. call for a return to civil rule.

Premier Kim Hyun Chul, in an interview with UPI, warned the United States against using its economic aid to Korea as a "political stick."

Kim said the United States, with "high-handed" use of its economic aid, might be able to force junta chairman Gen. Park to capitulate and give up his plan for extending military rule for four more years. But he said this might produce grave consequences.

King Saud Suffers Relapse

NICE, France (UPI) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia is seriously ill following a relapse in the past 24 hours, a member of the king's household said Tuesday night. A cylinder of oxygen and an oxygen tent were delivered to his hotel.

The sources said the wealthy ruler was not in immediate danger but was suffering from hemorrhages and a polypose condition of the digestive tract as well as a weak heart, a liver complaint, a blood ailment and asthma, which forces him to remain upright. His pulse was said to be very fast.

A spokesman for the royal household said Tuesday the king is in "good health" and that the oxygen was brought in because of his asthma. However, reliable sources said many of the 170 persons in Saud's entourage could be seen crying and kneeling to pray in the hotel corridors.

Twelve doctors are attending the king in his apartments in the Negresco Hotel.

King Hassan II Arrives In U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—King Hassan II of Morocco arrived here aboard the luxury liner Constitution Tuesday and left immediately for Philadelphia for the first stop of a state visit which will include conferences with President Kennedy in Washington.

Police said the author's sports car was traveling at around 120 miles an hour when it collided head-on with the truck.

Cambridge Mayor Airs Views On Racial Problems

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Mayor Calvin Mowbray of Cambridge says a series of racial demonstrations here last year has hampered progress in race relations under the city's bi-racial commission.

The mayor's comment came in response to remarks by a student integrationist leader, Gloria Richardson, that the Cambridge Bi-Racial Commission has made no progress in desegregating public facilities during the past year.

Miss Richardson, president of the Cambridge Non-Violent Action Committee, asked the City Council Monday night to push desegregation in education, housing, labor and industry.

Mowbray said the council did not have the power to enforce school integration, because school policies are decided by the Dorchester County Board of Education.

The Baltimore chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, meanwhile, criticized Gov. Tawes for the legislature's failure to confirm the appointment of the Rev. Marion Bascom to the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations.

In a letter to the governor, CORE said Bascom's appointment had not been confirmed "because he happens to be vocal in his opposition to racial injustice." Bascom is chairman of the Adult Assistance Committee of the Civic Interest Group.

Missionaries To Be Deported By Fidel Castro

HAVANA (UPI) —The Castro regime plans to deport about 20 to 25 Pentecostal church missionaries, most of them Americans and their dependents, it was reported Tuesday.

Premier Fidel Castro personally denounced the religious sect in a recent broadcast in which he held out an olive branch to the Roman Catholic Church with which he long has been at odds.

Informed sources said a special commercial flight from Miami would arrive Wednesday to take out the churchmen. Spare seats in the plane on the return flight to Miami will be used for Cuban refugees holding U.S. citizenship, and their dependents.

The Pentecostal church has been active in Cuba in the interior for several decades.

Three Cubans Shot In Try For Freedom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Cubans were killed and a third wounded outside the gates of the Guantanamo Naval Base as they tried to reach American territory, Rep. William C. Cramern, R-Fla., said Tuesday.

Cramer said the three were shot last week by Cuban soldiers who man the fence around the American base.

Cramer, who returned from a Defense Department tour of Guantanamo Tuesday, said the shootings "indicated the oppressive measures needed to keep Cubans in Cuba."

South Vietnamese Kill 33 Guerrillas

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops killed 33 Viet Cong guerrillas Monday in a fight near the hamlet of AP Bac where government forces suffered a humiliating defeat in January, U.S. military sources said Tuesday.

Boonsboro Hospital First To Get Supplies For CD

BOONSBORO, Md. (AP) — The Boonsboro Civil Defense Hospital became the first of nearly 2,000 in the United States to be stocked with medicines and other supplies for emergency use Tuesday.

The hospital, set up in the Boonsboro High School, is now capable of accommodating 200 patients. Its supplies will last 30 days.

Stocking the hospital was supervised by Richard M. Smith, stockpile manager for the U.S. Public Health Service; Leroy H. Cooper, storage specialist with the General Services Administration, and Leroy Metz, Washington County Civil Defense director.

Local doctors and nurses make up the professional staff of the hospital. They would be assisted in an emergency by trained volunteers.

Henry Nathan, information officer of the Maryland Civil Defense organization, said 1,930 emergency hospitals are planned throughout the country. Thirty-four are proposed for Maryland.

Violist Soloist For Concert Here

Godfrey Layefsky, principal violist, will be the soloist for the Pittsburgh Symphony concert here Friday, April 5.

He will play Handel's "Concerto for Viola and Orchestra in B Minor". The concert is sponsored by Columbia Gas of Maryland, and the proceeds go to the community service projects of 24 Cumberland area organizations.

Handel's viola concerto, according to a symphony spokesman, should be a musical treat for Cumberland concert-goers. Deeper and richer in tone than the violin, the larger viola is normally heard only in supporting roles. "There aren't many opportunities for an audience to hear a solo viola," Layefsky says, "but I think the audinece will enjoy this different sound. Layefsky will be heard playing his Amati Viola which was made by the venerated craftsman in 1684.

Layefsky has been associated with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra five years. He came from the New York Philharmonic, and before that post spent 12 years with the Metropolitan Opera orchestra.

American-born and American-trained, he studied at the New York Institute of Musical Art. His first orchestra post, at the age of 21, was with the Cleveland Symphony.

The Cumberland concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony will be held at Fort Hill High School auditorium, starting at 8:15 p. m.

The ticket chairman, John F. Vandegrift, says there may be a few tickets on sale at the box office on the night of the concert. He suggests, however, that tickets being sold by participating clubs should be purchased as early as possible. There are tickets available for students at a special rate.

You may never see a competitive auto event. But at 30 mph on rain-slick blacktop, in the close-packed rush of 5 o'clock traffic, on a twisting mountain road, the results are important to you. ☐ On every slippery surface you need the kind of roadability that placed five Fords out front in the Daytona "500." On every busy cross street—you want the brakes that won on Riverside's sports car circuit. Your engine will hold up better through years of turnpike use because it's as beautifully balanced as Falcon's Monte Carlo V-8's. ☐ The winning competition car is bound to be a great road car—and Ford is the big winner!

Woman, Daughter Killed In Va. Highway Accident

Mrs. Vertie (Barb) Dove Mongold, of Mathias, and her 10-year-old daughter, Sandra Dove, were killed Monday in an accident on Virginia Route 259 about seven miles from Broadway.

Critically injured in the accident was Mrs. Mongold's son, Terry Dove, 7, a patient in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va.

Mrs. Mongold was married Saturday to Delmar Mongold after having been widowed last July when her first husband, Owen Dove, was killed in an automobile accident near Mathias.

Mrs. Mongold was a daughter of Mrs. Lena (Dillinger) Barb, Mathias, and the late Homer Barb.

Surviving, besides her husband, mother and son, are another son, Donnie Barb, at home; six brothers, James L., William H., Albert C. and Homer G. Barb, all of Mathias, and Elbert and Amos Barb, both of Winchester, Va., and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Reynolds, Baker, W. Va.; Mrs. Virgie Shumaker, Mathias, and Mrs. Edna May, address unknown.

Her son also is survived by his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dove, Mathias.

Their bodies are at the Lindsey Funeral Home, Broadway.

Virginia State Police said the car being driven by Mrs. Mongold rammed into the back of a truck that had stopped to turn off Route 259.

Lions May Use Port For Races

The Mayor and Council has voiced approval of a Cumberland Lions Club Foundation request to use Municipal Airport again this year for the National Championship Sports Car Races May 10-12.

The Lions Foundation said a copy of a letter sent council Monday will be sent to the Municipal Airport Commission.

Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder said the Lions Foundation should be contacted concerning preparation and cleanup of the airport so that it will be clear where the responsibility lies, subject to approval of City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said he thought regulations were already established but Mrs. Roeder said they should be reviewed each year. Keegan said he agreed with that.

The Lions Foundation also was granted permission to install directional signs to the airport for the convenience of visitors to the city during the weekend event. This will be under the jurisdiction of the Police Department.

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Lions Club, gave a personal invitation to the Mayor and Council to attend today's luncheon meeting at Central YMCA to assist in publicity for the Lions Foundation.

Violist Soloist For Concert Here

Godfrey Layefsky, principal violist, will be the soloist for the Pittsburgh Symphony concert here Friday, April 5.

He will play Handel's "Concerto for Viola and Orchestra in B Minor". The concert is sponsored by Columbia Gas of Maryland, and the proceeds go to the community service projects of 24 Cumberland area organizations.

Handel's viola concerto, according to a symphony spokesman, should be a musical treat for Cumberland concert-goers. Deeper and richer in tone than the violin, the larger viola is normally heard only in supporting roles. "There aren't many opportunities for an audience to hear a solo viola," Layefsky says, "but I think the audinece will enjoy this different sound. Layefsky will be heard playing his Amati Viola which was made by the venerated craftsman in 1684.

Layefsky has been associated with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra five years. He came from the New York Philharmonic, and before that post spent 12 years with the Metropolitan Opera orchestra.

American-born and American-trained, he studied at the New York Institute of Musical Art. His first orchestra post, at the age of 21, was with the Cleveland Symphony.

The Cumberland concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony will be held at Fort Hill High School auditorium, starting at 8:15 p. m.

The ticket chairman, John F. Vandegrift, says there may be a few tickets on sale at the box office on the night of the concert. He suggests, however, that tickets being sold by participating clubs should be purchased as early as possible. There are tickets available for students at a special rate.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The meanest mother on the screen (in "Manchurian Candidate") and the young lady who was nominated for best supporting actress, Angela Lansbury, has now accepted one of the gentlest roles in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Angela has signed to play Claudia, the wife of Pontius Pilate in the George Stevens production.

Although the role is a very small one — and Angela is actually in only one scene, she feels this is one of the most important pictures ever made and she considers it an honor to have her name as one of the actors appearing in the movie.

Coincidentally, Pilate will be played by another Academy Award nominee, Telly Sevalas, who won his nomination as Burt Lancaster's prison friend in "Birdman of Alcatraz."

When Carol Burnett, on her first day of shooting, was asked if she had any more films coming up after "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed," in that dead pan manner of hers, she said, "It will depend upon whether I can prove I'm the movie type — and right now, I'm beginning to doubt it."

But the truth is that Carol has already made provision for her Hollywood future in the Broadway show "A Girl to Remember," which she will do next fall for co-producers Jule Styne and Lester Osterman. Jule also is writing the music, George Abbot will direct, and Betty Comden and Adolph Green will to the book about a Hollywood stunt girl in the 30's.

Carol took the play with the understanding that she also will star in the screen version of the show.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you save this marriage? My wife has become very friendly with a woman whose reputation isn't worth a plugged nickel. She has gone through three or four husbands. I'm not sure which.

This woman got my wife interested in mixed-league bowling. At least three nights a week they are out until 2 a. m. — sometimes later. Last month they went to Toledo on an overnight bowling trip. Next week they plan to go to Columbus.

I phoned the woman yesterday and told her to leave my wife alone. She read me off in pretty salty language, and said my wife is old enough to choose her own friends.

We have two children who are beginning to wonder what's going on. The house is always a mess and I've had to cook dinner for myself and the kids more times than I care to admit. Please give me some advice.—THE SPARE

DEAR SPARE: The woman is right when she says your wife is old enough to choose her own friends. And if this is her choice she doesn't deserve the respectability of home, husband and children.

Tell her she can go with you to a marriage counselor or a clergyman and discuss the problem. (Something is wrong or she wouldn't be running around.) If she is unwilling to make the effort to get the marriage back in working condition then tell her to take all her clothes the next time she goes on an overnight bowling trip.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in your reply to the woman who was upset because her guests insisted on helping her clear the table and do up the dishes in spite of her protests.

When we entertain guests I'm perfectly relaxed about leaving the dishes until they say goodnight. But this one friend of mine is an absolute nut about orderliness. She just can't stand it.

I've begged her not to clean up, but she may as well be deaf. She goes right ahead, clears the table, washes the dishes, puts everything away, dumps the garbage, scours the sink and bleaches the dish cloth.

I can't tie her to a chair, Ann, and she simply insists on cleaning up in spite of my pleading. In recent months I've let her go ahead and do it. Am I being rude in permitting a guest to work while I sit in the living room? — SOUTH DAKOTA

DEAR DAKOTA: Relax. You're doing her a favor. This woman obviously has a compulsion to clean — so let her enjoy herself and don't give it another thought.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 17 years old but everyone takes me for 19 because I'm so mature.

Three months ago I started to date a man who works at a supermarket. We saw each other about five nights a week. Then for no good reason he stood me up on a Friday night.

I worried myself sick, thinking maybe something terrible happened to him. The next morning I telephoned him at work and he said "I forgot." He has been very busy ever since and I have not seen him.

Yesterday I heard he's been dating a girl who looks like me.

Do you think this girl is a substitute? Please tell me. I must know. — IN PIECES

DEAR IN: If this boy were interested in you, he wouldn't need a substitute. Forget him. He doesn't have the nerve to tell you he has found a spring replacement.

It happened so quickly! Three hours ago he was fine . . . now he's in the hospital. Naturally, you're worried about him . . . even though you know he's receiving the best possible care. Later, when the emergency's over, you'll have time to think about other things . . . like the hospital bill. That's when you'll be glad your family has a hospitalization program—particularly if that program is Blue Cross.

Why? Because basic Blue Cross benefits are not limited to a certain number of dollars per day, or so much per case. Blue Cross pays most hospital bills in full.

Think what this protection can mean in times of emergency . . . or any time someone in your family needs hospital care. This is one reason why more Marylanders have chosen Blue Cross than all other hospital care programs combined . . . and why Blue Cross is the right choice for your family.

When we entertain guests I'm perfectly relaxed about leaving the dishes until they say goodnight. But this one friend of mine is an absolute nut about orderliness. She just can't stand it.

I've begged her not to clean up, but she may as well be deaf. She goes right ahead, clears the table, washes the dishes, puts everything away, dumps the garbage, scours the sink and bleaches the dish cloth.

I can't tie her to a chair, Ann, and she simply insists on cleaning up in spite of my pleading. In recent months I've let her go ahead and do it. Am I being rude in permitting a guest to work while I sit in the living room? — SOUTH DAKOTA

DEAR DAKOTA: Relax. You're doing her a favor. This woman obviously has a compulsion to clean — so let her enjoy herself and don't give it another thought.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 17 years old but everyone takes me for 19 because I'm so mature.

Three months ago I started to date a man who works at a supermarket. We saw each other about five nights a week. Then for no good reason he stood me up on a Friday night.

I worried myself sick, thinking maybe something terrible happened to him. The next morning I telephoned him at work and he said "I forgot." He has been very busy ever since and I have not seen him.

Yesterday I heard he's been dating a girl who looks like me.

Do you think this girl is a substitute? Please tell me. I must know. — IN PIECES

DEAR IN: If this boy were interested in you, he wouldn't need a substitute. Forget him. He doesn't have the nerve to tell you he has found a spring replacement.

L BERNSTEIN WAREHOUSE — 152 Union St.

It happened so quickly! Three hours ago he was fine . . . now he's in the hospital. Naturally, you're worried about him . . . even though you know he's receiving the best possible care. Later, when the emergency's over, you'll have time to think about other things . . . like the hospital bill. That's when you'll be glad your family has a hospitalization program—particularly if that program is Blue Cross.

Why? Because basic Blue Cross benefits are not limited to a certain number of dollars per day, or so much per case. Blue Cross pays most hospital bills in full.

Think what this protection can mean in times of emergency . . . or any time someone in your family needs hospital care. This is one reason why more Marylanders have chosen Blue Cross than all other hospital care programs combined . . . and why Blue Cross is the right choice for your family.

We'll be glad to send you full information.

Bedford County Road Projects Are Planned

BEDFORD, Pa. — State Highway Department officials in Hollidaysburg report that plans are more than 90 per cent complete for two major highway projects for Bedford County — reconstruction of 13 miles of Route 220 south of Bedford and building divided roadway for Route 30 from Juniata Crossings Crossings to Breezewood.

The officials reported to the Bedford Gazette that final plans for both would be submitted by mid-April to the central office in Harrisburg for final approval.

However the Hollidaysburg officials said neither county project is assured for 1963. Highway budgets throughout Pennsylvania depend on the budget of Governor William Scranton scheduled for release within a month.

Highway officials said projects for the remainder of the year will be determined by money available. The Route 30 job which includes 50 per cent matching funds from the federal government originally was programmed for this year.

The Route 220 reconstruction was set for 1964-65 but most countians have expressed opinion the 13 miles of rut-filled roadway needs immediate attention.

County highway crews last month patched large holes in the highway, but newer and deeper cavities have developed in the interim.

Reconstruction will begin near the intersection of County Home Road and extend south to new black top pavement several miles south of Centerville. It extends to the Maryland border and was completed five years ago.

Plans for the initial half of the project — Centerville to "Snufftown" were submitted Dec. 13 by the Hollidaysburg office to the Harrisburg office.

The first six and one-half mile stretch will contain approximately 60 per cent new construction with the remainder salvage.

The remaining six and one-half miles to the County Home Road has better horizontal and vertical alignment and will contain only 30 to 40 per cent new construction.

The entire road will be widened from 18 to 24 feet. It will mean an addition of six feet to sections of the highway that will be salvaged.

Six inches of special sub grade will be covered by 12 inches of stone base in sections requiring widening. It and existing roadway, after concrete patching, will be covered with two and one-half inches of bituminous material.

The Homestead Television Translators, Inc., with transmitter site at Coney Flat, Lonaconing, Maryland, has filed with the Federal Communications Commission on March 23, 1963, two applications for two new translator stations to serve Lonaconing, Midland and adjacent areas. These translators will operate with one watt power on output channels 7 and 9. The signals intended to be rebroadcast are: WTAE, Channel 4, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and WTTG, Channel 5, Washington, D. C.

She said facilities at four of the state's eight parks where cabins are available are already filled from July through August.

Cabins still are available for the summer months at Babcock, State Park in Fayette County, Bluestone State Park in Summers County, Holly River State Park in Webster County and Watoga State Park in Pocahontas County.

Bedford County Road Projects Are Planned

BEDFORD, Pa. — State Highway Department officials in Hollidaysburg report that plans are more than 90 per cent complete for two major highway projects for Bedford County — reconstruction of 13 miles of Route 220 south of Bedford and building divided roadway for Route 30 from Juniata Crossings Crossings to Breezewood.

The officials reported to the Bedford Gazette that final plans for both would be submitted by mid-April to the central office in Harrisburg for final approval.

However the Hollidaysburg officials said neither county project is assured for 1963. Highway budgets throughout Pennsylvania depend on the budget of Governor William Scranton scheduled for release within a month.

Highway officials said projects for the remainder of the year will be determined by money available. The Route 30 job which includes 50 per cent matching funds from the federal government originally was programmed for this year.

The Route 220 reconstruction was set for 1964-65 but most countians have expressed opinion the 13 miles of rut-filled roadway needs immediate attention.

County highway crews last month patched large holes in the highway, but newer and deeper cavities have developed in the interim.

Reconstruction will begin near the intersection of County Home Road and extend south to new black top pavement several miles south of Centerville. It extends to the Maryland border and was completed five years ago.

Plans for the initial half of the project — Centerville to "Snufftown" were submitted Dec. 13 by the Hollidaysburg office to the Harrisburg office.

The first six and one-half mile stretch will contain approximately 60 per cent new construction with the remainder salvage.

The remaining six and one-half miles to the County Home Road has better horizontal and vertical alignment and will contain only 30 to 40 per cent new construction.

The entire road will be widened from 18 to 24 feet. It will mean an addition of six feet to sections of the highway that will be salvaged.

Six inches of special sub grade will be covered by 12 inches of stone base in sections requiring widening. It and existing roadway, after concrete patching, will be covered with two and one-half inches of bituminous material.

The Homestead Television Translators, Inc., with transmitter site at Coney Flat, Lonaconing, Maryland, has filed with the Federal Communications Commission on March 23, 1963, two applications for two new translator stations to serve Lonaconing, Midland and adjacent areas. These translators will operate with one watt power on output channels 7 and 9. The signals intended to be rebroadcast are: WTAE, Channel 4, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and WTTG, Channel 5, Washington, D. C.

They are Jane Blake, Hagerstown, an alumna of Cheltenham High School, and Russell McGaughey, an alumnus of Fort Hill High School, Cumberland.

W. Va. Tourist Season Is Off To Good Start

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia apparently is off to a good start toward another record tourist season this year.

Mrs. Velma H. LeRoy, of the Natural Resourses Department's parks division, said reservations for park cabins are running about 20 per cent ahead of 1962.

She said facilities at four of the state's eight parks where cabins are available are already filled from July through August.

Cabins still are available for the summer months at Babcock, State Park in Fayette County, Bluestone State Park in Summers County, Holly River State Park in Webster County and Watoga State Park in Pocahontas County.

The state parks booked just about solid for the height of the summer are Blackwater in Tucker County, Cacapon in Morgan County, Lost River in Hardy County, and Tygart Lake in Barbour and Taylor Counties.

Submarines did an estimated 75 per cent of all damage inflicted on ships during the Second World War.

Flags Given To Church

FROSTBURG — The Brotherhood of First English Church presented a set of flags to the church in the morning worship service Sunday.

The American Flag and Christian flag were dedicated to remind the men of the church that their Christian influence should be applied to their daily living as well as their church life. Funds to purchase the flags were donated by the men of the Brotherhood and the Church. Chester Stewart headed the collection committee. Following the dedication of the flags, Mr. Stewart presented a cash donation to the choir director to be used to purchase music or to apply toward robes if ever they decide to adopt them.

Next Tuesday when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visits Frostburg, the men will meet at the American Legion Home to donate blood. All of these projects are a part of their "Personal Stewardship" program. Paul Moulden is president of the group.

Tax Rate Hike

Another healthy boost expected to be granted next Tuesday will be $60,000 more for the County Roads Department which got $482,030 in the current budget. More for materials and equipment as well as an upward adjustment in wages under the County Civil Service system are the reasons for the boost.

The county commissioners are understood to be giving serious consideration to a road improvement program patterned after the one now in effect for Cumberland streets. When a street improvement project is undertaken in Cumberland, the city pays half the cost and the other 50 per cent is borne by the property owners living along the street.

One typical increase in the budget will provide the county's two dog wardens with more funds. That item in the current budget is $10,721.80.

The county commissioners discovered in reviewing departmental budgets that the salary item in many of them was simply a continuation of existing salaries whereas many employes would be entitled to more money as they become more experienced in the next fiscal year. As an illustration, the commissioners found that the $235,099.66 budgeted was not enough to pay the salaries at the County Infirmary. This infirmary salary item is being hiked to $248,000.

The County Welfare Department budget for the new year starting July 1 will be increased because many of the items in it are keyed to the county's assessable basis. Last year the county commissioners used a basis of $178,000,000 and this year it is being boosted to $197,000,000. An item calling for one cent on the tax rate, as some in the welfare budget do, will get $19,700 next year instead of $17,800.

An imponderable which often affects the county's tax rate is the surplus in the form of unexpended balance from the previous levy. A year ago that figure reached an all-time high of $846,855.93. This year it is expected to be down about $190,000 to some $658,000.

Following is a chart of the county's tax rates and budgets since 1941:

| Year | Rate | Budget |
|---|---|---|
| 1941 | $1.43 | $1,822,462.50 |

Rattle-free, stronger Advanced Unit Construction, the years-ahead breakthrough in car building. Massive uniside replaces many small parts.

Motor Trend Magazine's auto experts never handle the "Car of the Year" with kid gloves.

They slammed Ramblers over back-country roads and reported, "rough roads can be stormed with confidence."

They studied Rambler's Advanced Unit Construction—found it "so strong it'll take punishment longer."

Finally, they summed up Rambler '63 by saying: "It's an even better value than before."

Repairs Asked To County Road

Three residents along Stony Hollow Road, which runs off State Route 36 near Mt. Savage, appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to request repairs to the roadway.

They said seven families reside on a 200-yard stretch of the road, which is in the area they want repaired. They were told by the commissioners that Harry T. Skelly, county roads supervisor, would check into the matter to determine if the roadway is in the county system and what needs to be done.

Morocco: From Bases To What?

Back in 1958 King Mohammed V of Morocco demanded "total and unconditional" evacuation of U.S. bases in his country. The upshot was a formal agreement a year later that the United States would give up its four air bases and one naval installation there no later than the end of 1963.

The whole matter will be discussed again now, while King Hassan II of Morocco, who took the throne after the death of King Mohammed in 1961, is making a 10-day state visit to the United States. The United States is ready to live up to its agreement to get out of Morocco this year. But there is some talk that King Hassan may be willing to renegotiate the 1959 agreement to provide for a later withdrawal from the U.S. naval station at Kenitra (formerly Port Lyautey).

Since gaining independence from France in 1956, Morocco has received an estimated $325 million in American aid of various kinds. With our bases gone, Morocco would lose part of its leverage for continued assistance. A survey team, headed by William O. Baxter of the State Department, was dispatched to Morocco late in 1961 to study ways in which the U.S. bases could best be converted to serve economic and social development. Some elaborate proposals were drawn up, but no firm commitments have yet been made.

Five years ago the Moroccan government would have been satisfied simply to see America abandon her bases there. Now there is some feeling that this country has a duty to help fill the economic vacuum which such a withdrawal creates in the immediate vicinity of the bases.

Riding Herd

There is a report current in Washington that President Kennedy is about to ask Congress to set up an administrative agency to ride herd on the administrative agencies. But the question is whether the regulators need regulating, or whether they might better be abolished in favor of automatic regulation by the forces of free market competition.

An administrative agency to watch over the administrative agencies would, in the nature of things, be a body consisting of detectives and judges. The super-administrators would have to be endowed with the power to snoop. Since only a mediocre man will take a supervisory job if he knows that he is to be spied upon and second-guessed, the existence of a super-administrative agency with quasi-police and quasi-judicial powers would, over a stretch of time, automatically lower the calibre of such bodies as the Federal Communications Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

There is, of course, soft talk at present about limiting a super-agency to something less than "czar-like" powers. But if it lacked the ability to make its recommendations stick, it would merely create another hazard to be surmounted in the long process of settling disputes between the regulators and the regulated. And soon the cry would arise, "Who will regulate the regulators of the regulated?" Somehow it makes one think of that old song, "Who Takes Care of the Caretaker's Daughter While the Caretaker's Busy Taking Care?"

The cry for an agency to watch over the agencies is a perfect example of the operation of Parkinson's Law of Bureaucratic Cell Division. Once the agency is set up, it would inevitably develop its own sub-empires, devoted to this and that bit of specialization. As Professor Parkinson says, "Work expands to fill the time available for it." And as the Professor elaborates, "expenditures rise to meet income." The super-agency would multiply time for work, and it would have income to spend. The taxpayer would, of course, pay the bill, either directly or through inflation of the currency to cover an addition to the federal deficit.

The direct way of regulating such laggard and malfunctioning administrative agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission would be to prune their functions severely. President Kennedy has himself suggested this. Some of the more moribund commissions might easily be abolished, at no loss to anybody save the regulators themselves.

When the Interstate Commerce Commission was set up, in the fateful year of 1887, there was a shadow of an excuse for it. Prior to the post-Civil War spate of railroad building across the western plains, the railroads of America had been effectively kept from rate-gouging by the existence of alternative river or canal routes. Since grain from Chicago could be shipped east to Buffalo by the competing Great Lakes water route, old Commodore Vanderbilt's New York Central couldn't say very well, "The grain shipper be damned." Once the wheat grower had moved to the high plains of the West, however, where the rivers are too uncertain and too shallow to provide an alternative carrying service, the railroads could raise their rates with impunity.

So the I. C. C. may have been a valid response to a need of the late Nineteenth Century, but today, with our modern grid of automobile roads and our proliferation of airlines and long-distance pipelines, there is plenty of natural competition to hold railroad ratemakers in check. So why not prune the powers of the I. C. C. or even get rid of the danged thing entirely?

There are, currently, four big railroad mergers pending at the I. C. C. The rail mergers might best be speeded, not by the creation of a super-agency to tell the I. C. C. to hurry up, but by riding the I. C. C. itself out of town on a rail. If a railroad merger threatens monopoly of any kind, there is always the restraining influence of Bobby Kennedy's Department of Justice, which happens to have an anti-trust enforcement division. Why multiply the cops?

Gen. De Gaulle Has An Aim, But Not A Plan

By Joseph Alsop

PARIS

Talk to four dozen leading Frenchmen, all of them in high responsible positions in what might be called the French political community. You will then get 47 different opinions about the current plans and parties, although not about the ultimate aim of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Such has been this reporter's experience, at any rate. The two among the 48 who agreed with one another were both anti-Gaullist. They offered the diagnosis that de Gaulle's judgments of Europe, and of the United States and of the Soviet Union, have been abnormally warped by pride, suspicion, and success.

When each of these two lonely persons speaking with a common voice was informed that his diagnosis had support from the other man, both of them were downright furious.

But Gen. de Gaulle confides his plans and purposes to no one at all, conspicuously including the chief members of his own cabinet.

It can then be seen that "Elyseeology," as an attempt to read the mind of the chief tenant of the Elysee Palace is beginning to be called, is an even less exact science than Kremlinology. Nonetheless, this reporter is now convinced that he has earlier committed a grave error, which had better be corrected now.

From the angle of vision of Washington, it appeared that Gen. de Gaulle's quasi-coup d'etat in Europe really must have behind it a plan to rapid, further action. What de Gaulle did was clearly directed to establishing a kind of Gaullist hegemony of the nations of the European Common Market.

Yet it was equally clearly impossible for Gen. de Gaulle to be first in Europe, so long as, under NATO, the U. S. was still first in the defense of Europe. Hence it seemed necessary to assume that Gen. de Gaulle had a plan for liquidating the American military person in Europe at a fairly early date.

Here was the error. Despite the marked differences in diagnosis ofered by leading Frenchmen, there is one central fact that can be synthesized, so to say, from the mass of conflicting testimony. The fact seems to be that Gen. de Gaulle has an aim, but he does not have a plan.

In the case of the Algerian war, for example, de Gaulle's aim from the start was certainly to heal this cancer on the French body politic. At first he tried prosecuting the war vastly more efficiently, while offering the rebels a "peace of the brave" on conditions attaching Algeria closely to France.

When this did not work, he evidently concluded it was necessary to do what he had said many scores of times that he would never do. He concluded it was necessary to hand Algeria over to the F. L. N. rebels. And that was the final outcome.

In the present instance, Gen de Gaulle's aim is once again quite clear. It is a "European Europe," standing on its own feet, in no way depending on the United "tates but linked on terms of complete equality with the United States in a transformed Western alliance.

As in the former case, the aim is not unintelligible. It is both sensible and fully in accord with the long swing of history. And at this point, one recalled the remark of one of de Gaulle's former closest collaborators that the General is "with regard to the past infallible; in the future prophetic; but in the present often detestable."

De Gaulle is "detestable" in the present precisely because he does not pursue his long-term aims by any coherent scheme of action which can be argued about or even successfully opposed. He will certainly stop anything happening which he thinks may block the subsequent attainment of an aim, just as he stopped the British from entering Europe "as an American Trojan horse," as he put it.

Yet in circumstances like the present circumstances in Europe, saying "no" when he is able to do so is de Gaulle's major form of action. Beyond this he maintains a posture — in the present instance the posture of the leading advocate and potential leader of a European Europe uncontaminated by American influence.

He also indulges in the strange pin-pricks of precedents and table placements, which seem so wildly odd to Englishmen and Americans, but help him, in his opinion, to maintain his chosen posture. And in addition, while waiting for history to justify him, he merely takes advantage of tactical opportunities which may come his way by accident or by the fall of his adversaries.

Hence what we have to worry about is not what seems so worrisome in Washington. There is no immediate prospect of a Gaullist attempt to destroy NATO, or to force American withdrawal from Europe. What we have to worry about, rather, is how to avoid faults of our own which will play too far into Gen. de Gaulle's hands.

For although de Gaulle's aim of an equal Europe is entirely sound, the trouble is that he wishes to achieve this aim against the extra-European members of the Western alliance, and quite largely at their expense. Hence the method can prove to be profoundly dangerous, even though the aim deserves our sympathy.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TIME—The Naval Observatory in Washington will soon receive a loan of a chronometer which in its way is every bit as famous as the Mona Lisa, and which the British owners hope will be handled carefully.

The device, known as Harrison's Chronometer No. 4, is the one that was used by Capt. James Cook on his round-the-world journey from 1768 to 1771.

The first one of the series was authorized by the British Parliament in 1713, which offered a prize of $60,000—no mean sum then or now—for the invention of a chronometer that could measure longitude to an accuracy of 30 miles.

Harrison, a Quaker, went to London years later and completed the first model in 1728. But it wasn't until 1773 that he received final payment of the prize.

The British hope they won't experience the same delay in getting the chronometer back to London. They have lent it to the Naval Observatory for only a year.

CHURCH DIPLOMAT — One of President Kennedy's assistants, Brooks Hays, is a former congressman and once served as president of the Southern Baptist Conference. With the experience, Hays is aware of the rivalry that used to exist between the Baptists and the Methodists.

Recently Hays made a speech before the Methodist Board of Christian Social Concerns, and with the old rivalry in mind decided that the situation called for a diplomatic opening. He bagan by saying:

"I am really a Methodist-Baptist, and that's sort of like being a bi-partisan Democrat."

After the laughter subsided, Hays had no further difficulty as a former Baptist official speaking to a Methodist meeting.

Yokings, Robberies Make Walking Capital's Streets Unsafe After Dark

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Walter Lippmanns were giving one of the intelligentsia-packed cocktail parties. Mrs. Mary Russell, lovely widow of the New York Herald Tribune Eureopean correspondent, entered the room. Suddenly, Henry Brandon, correspondent of the London Sunday Times swooned. One look at Mrs. Russell and he fainted dead away.

Mrs. Russell protested that she was not bloody. But she did wear a large patch of adhesive tape over her nose, marking her as another casualty in the rapidly increasing list of Washingtonians who have been beaten up in the Nation's Capital.

Mrs. Russell had been in a Georgetown dress shop when she noted three large women plunging out of the store carrying dresses on their arms. Mary aimed a flying tackle at the leading dress-thief who responded with her fists. The leader got away. It was found that they were extrasized because they had stuffed dresses under their own clothing.

The incident climaxes a long list of assaults and robberies which has given Washington one of the highest crime rates in the United States, which put Mrs. Brooks Hays, wife of the ex-Congressman from Arkansas now a White House aide, in the hospital with a broken arm, and which has made it dangerous to walk on Washington streets after twilight.

"Crime-Free" Neighborhood

"When we were visiting in Moscow," says Mrs. Mike Monroney, wife of the Senator from Oklahoma, "we used to walk home from the ballet at midnight a good many blocks. But in Washington I wouldn't think of going half a block to the post box after 10 p. m."

Mrs. Monroney lives a few doors from the home of the late John Foster Dulles in one of the more aristocratic and crime-free neighborhoods.

In less serene neighborhoods it is even hazardous for a bus driver to insist that passengers pay their fare. Several bus drivers have been beaten up or robbed y Negro youths when t heytirdedh by Negro youths when they tried to collect fares, and quite recently a policeman was killed when he interfered with a recalcitrant bus passenger.

Gov. Pat Brown of California has proposed outlawing boxing as a sport because of its casualties. If he were the governor of the District of Columbia he would find that the casualties connected with driving buses are worse than the casualties from boxing in California, and that the casualties from walking through the streets of Washington are about one hundred times worse than the total boxing deaths for the entire U.S.A.

Bobby Kennedy, the Attorney General, walked fifty miles to the vicinity of Camp David, but he could not walk fifty blocks in the city of Washington after dark without serious risk of being yoked, robbed or even murdered.

Some of the above statements may sound exaggerated but unfortunately they are born out by the official figures of J. Edgar Hoover and the police. These show that last month robberies in Washington increased 25 per cent over February, 1962, and that the robbery rate this year is even outstripping that of 1962 which set an all-time record, most of the incidents being street robberies.

Most tragic development is the high percentage of robberies committed by teenagers, plus the fact that the juvenile delinquency rate is 13 per cent higher in the District of Columbia than the average for other large urban areas of the United States.

One tragic juvenile crime last month was the murder of a night watchman by two eleven-year-olds. They shot him with their father's gun in order to get the guard's gun — a technique they had learned from watching television.

In Washington such organizations as the Boy Scouts, Police Boys Clubs and Big Brothers have waged an uphill battle to combat juvenile delinquency. But in addition to TV crime, they have to combat divorce, broken homes, slum conditions and crowded, inadequate schools. Finally they have to combat public lethargy. Big Brothers, which applies the principle of picking one man to advise one boy, has a waiting list of about thirty boys for qualified men willing to take the time to work with them.

Battle Over Judges

Under Washington's unique system of government in which Congress and White House-appointed commissioners sometimes battle for control, the Juvenile Court for years limped along with only one judge. This was because one Congressman from Georgia, Jim Davis, was opposed to more judges.

The people of Georgia have now retired Davis and sent an alert, broad-guaged substitute, Charles C. Weltner, to take his place. So Washington now has more juvenile judges. But this problem was solved by the people of Georgia, not by the people of Washington.

The problem of crowded schools is also beyond the reach of Washington residents. Rep. William Colmer, the Mississippi Dixiecrat, has been able to block the aid-to-education bill in the Rules Committee with the aid of Cardinal Spellman in New York. Meanwhile his district in Biloxi, Miss., gets $1,245,000 of federal funds for schools because of nearby Keesler Air Force Base.

All of this adds up to a city with the highest juvenile crime rate in the U.S.A., a city which compares unfavorably with Moscow when it comes to walking home at night. So perhaps a career in the boxing ring against Sugar Ramos, or even Sonny Liston, who will be in Washington this week to talk on juvenile delinquency, is safer.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

There is something disgusting about being overweight. I know what it is. It's fat. I have it. I look like an old upright piano. How can anybody be 5 feet 7½ inches tall and weigh 184 pounds? Easy. It was no problem for me.

No beach Apollo, me. On the sand I look more like Buddha contemplating his navel. Old friends greet me with a hearty handshake and: "You're looking good, my boy. Picked up a little weight, hey?" Translation: "You nut. You bucking for a cardiac or something?"

So I decided to do something about it. I went to Cye Martin's snob center and bought some dark clothes. The tailor tried size 40 and then admitted that the back of the trousers could not be let out that much. So he got some size 42 stuff and cut two feet off the legs. The back had to be let out a little. He made chalk marks to show where. This man is a little too personal for a stranger.

The clothes arrived and I tried them on. I tried on a couple of wild sports shirts and the kids said I looked like a weather balloon. Someone is going to have to talk to those youngsters. Our housekeeper, Katie, just looked and held herself down to a broad smile. She cooks German style. Get the plot?

So I did something about it. Ten days ago I decided to give up eating three items: potatoes, bread and candy. Somehow, dinner isn't dinner to me without a potato. A nice big baked one with sour cream and chives. Or a couple of pounds of lyonnaise with lots of onions. The potatoes had to go. I dreaded to watch them pass under my nose without stopping. Like old friends who walk by without saying hello.

Bread is another of my vices. Sour rye is a favorite. With carroway seeds, please. Three slices are sufficient. Well, bread had to go too. The trouble with any diet—even a homemade one like this — is that the missing amounts of food must be replaced with something else.

Fat people are fat because they like to eat fattening foods. They hate thinning foods. So I ate thinning stuff, like a couple of pounds of broccoli with no dressing; a salad with two drops of oil and four of vinegar; two portions of boiled carrots with no butter. Food fit for rabbits.

The third substance was candy. This is an inexcusable weakness on my part. The hunger for candy hits me at about 10:30 every night. From that point on, it mounts. My wife likes candy too. Sometimes, when my father visits us and watches us go off to the bedroom laden with bags and tins he shakes his head sadly.

"Reminds me of two hunters going off into the jungle on safari," he says. This is sheer jealousy on his part because John Bishop was the best free-handed candy eater I ever met. He used to knock off a couple of boxes of cough drops when he didn't have a cough.

So the candy went. My wife had to hide it from me while making it available for the children. That takes will power—on her part. Also nerve. The results were amazing. I gave up three of the great loves of my life for food a starving ox would spurn, and I began to lose a pound a day. In ten days, I weighed 174.

Everybody said: "You're going too fast." I think they were right because I felt as though I was really going. I began to see myself in a box. The weight went fast but my disposition went faster. I woke up growling and went to bed growling. My wife said that if I didn't stop it, she'd hide my teddy bear.

Some authorities say that a person should weigh what he weighed when he was 21 years of age. My weight was 145. I'll never live to see it. My goal is 160. Dr. Bernard A. Krull used to say: "How many fat people do you know 60 years of age?"

Well, there was my late mother-in-law. Maggy Dunning was exactly five feet tall and weighed a cool 190. When she heaved a sigh, it often rolled up the rugs. She lived to age 77, and she talked diet from the age of 49 onward. She figured that if she kept talking about it, no one else could introduce the subject, and she was right. She loved hot food and ice cold beer.

Who's to say she was wrong? The more weight I lose, the more I envy Maggy. My father once weighed 254. I'm telling you that this is a family of eaters. There is a lady in our family whose north to south measurements run 36, 44 and 52. Like a blonde pyramid.

When one is fat, the first 10 pounds drop off easily. From here on, it is going to be more and more difficult to loose, because the amount of fat left aboard is smaller. However, I'm 10 pounds lighter. Mostly in the head. Don't applaud, friends. Just send Care Packages. . .

Cirrhosis Of Liver More Common In Alcoholics

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Cirrhosis of the liver is the fifth most frequent cause of death. Alcoholism may be to blame because the condition is seven times more common in the drinker than in the abstainer. On the other hand, only 1 to 12 alcoholics develops trouble along this line. Other origins include malnutrition, poisonings, and infections of the liver such as viral hepatitis.

The cells of the liver are destroyed in cirrhosis and are replaced with scar tissue. Despite this marked distortion in the architecture of the organ, some alcoholics with cirrhosis regain normal or near normal liver function when they go on the wagon. This in itself incriminates alcohol.

But it is not easy to give up drinking, as anyone who has had experience with cirrhotic patients knows. They begin to drink again as soon as they feel better. Many are not weaned, even though they are under rigid surveillance in the hospital. Friends and relatives sneak in bottles which these patients are adept at hiding.

Liver trouble is suspected whenever an alcoholic complains of unexplained lassitude, easy fatigability, dyspepsia, and loss of appetite. Weight loss and evidence of tissue wasting may occur. True, these symptoms are not specific for liver disease but they represent the slight early departure from health that so many victims of cirrhosis tell about after it is too late. Eighty per cent of the organ must be destroyed before there are obvious manifestations of liver failure.

The complications of cirrhosis are the most serious aspects of the disease. The scar tissue contracts and the shrunken liver obstructs the large vein that comes from the intestines and passes through the liver on its way to the heart. This is responsible for th abdominal swelling and puffiness of the legs that so many with cirrhosis develop. Edema is controlable with our modern diuretics but in the past the abdominal fluid was removed at intervals via a large needle.

Bleeding from the stomach also is a serious complication. Transfusions may be needed but a special balloon must be inserted when bleeding continues. This is inflated and presses upon the ruptured vein. Surgery must be considered should pressure fail.

YELLOW PLAQUES

F. B. B. writes: What are the symptoms of too much cholesterol in the blood?

REPLY

The majority of persons with a high blood cholesterol level have no symptoms. A small percentage develop yellow nodules or slightly raised plaques (xanthomas) on the skin, especially over joints or on the eyelids.

INCREASED THIRST

M. D. writes: What are the symptoms of diabetes?

REPLY

Usually there are no symptoms and the disease is discovered when a routine examination is made on the urine. Others develop increased appetite and thirst along with a tendency to urinate more frequently.

PAP RATINGS

Mrs. W. writes: I was rated 2 on the Pap test. What does this mean?

REPLY

This is normal on many ratings. But discuss this with the physician who ordered the test because the results are reported in different ways.

TOMORROW: Positive tuberculin tests.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Once upon a time there was a college professor who was considered the world's greatest authority on fish. He knew the name of every species of fish, probably, in all the world. Unfortunately, he could NOT remember the names of the boys in his classes.

Aware that he was winning the reputation of an eccentric, he vowed one fall to memorize the name of every newly registered freshman. It was a project, however, he soon had to abandon. For he discovered that every time he remembered the name of a freshman, he forgot the name of a fish!

The owner of a spanking new pleasure boat was not averse to female companionship on his moonlight cruises. The way he'd lure a debutante aboard was to assure her, "You'll be crazy about my new boat. Incidentally, I wonder if you know that I named it after you."

No girl could resist a pitch like that! It was only when she saw the boat tied up at the dock that she realized she had been had. The letters on the stern read "AFTER YOU."

An avant-garde poet had a thin volume of his poems published some months ago. Asked last week how the book was selling, he admitted, "Not so good. I haven't been buying so many copies lately."

Such has been this reporter's experience, at any rate. The two among the 48 who agreed with one another were both anti-Gaullist. They offered the diagnosis that de Gaulle's judgments of Europe, and of the United States and of the Soviet Union, have been abnormally warped by pride, suspicion, and success.

When each of these two lonely persons speaking with a common voice was informed that his diagnosis had support from the other man, both of them were downright furious.

It can then be seen that "Elyseeology," as an attempt to read the mind of the chief tenant of the Elysee Palace is beginning to be called, is an even less exact science than Kremlinology. Nonetheless, this reporter is now convinced that he has earlier committed a grave error, which had better be corrected now.

From the angle of vision of Washington, it appeared that Gen. de Gaulle's quasi-coup d'etat in Europe really must have behind it a plan to rapid, further action. What de Gaulle did was clearly directed to establishing a kind of Gaullist hegemony of the nations of the European Common Market.

Yet it was equally clearly impossible for Gen. de Gaulle to be first in Europe, so long as, under NATO, the U. S. was still first in the defense of Europe. Hence it seemed necessary to assume that Gen. de Gaulle had a plan for liquidating the American military person in Europe at a fairly early date.

Here was the error. Despite the marked differences in diagnosis ofered by leading Frenchmen, there is one central fact that can be synthesized, so to say, from the mass of conflicting testimony. The fact seems to be that Gen. de Gaulle has an aim, but he does not have a plan.

In the case of the Algerian war, for example, de Gaulle's aim from the start was certainly to heal this cancer on the French body politic. At first he tried prosecuting the war vastly more efficiently, while offering the rebels a "peace of the brave" on conditions attaching Algeria closely to France.

When this did not work, he evidently concluded it was necessary to do what he had said many scores of times that he would never do. He concluded it was necessary to hand Algeria over to the F. L. N. rebels. And that was the final outcome.

In the present instance, Gen de Gaulle's aim is once again quite clear. It is a "European Europe," standing on its own feet, in no way depending on the United "tates but linked on terms of complete equality with the United States in a transformed Western alliance.

As in the former case, the aim is not unintelligible. It is both sensible and fully in accord with the long swing of history. And at this point, one recalled the remark of one of de Gaulle's former closest collaborators that the General is "with regard to the past infallible; in the future prophetic; but in the present often detestable."

De Gaulle is "detestable" in the present precisely because he does not pursue his long-term aims by any coherent scheme of action which can be argued about or even successfully opposed. He will certainly stop anything happening which he thinks may block the subsequent attainment of an aim, just as he stopped the British from entering Europe "as an American Trojan horse," as he put it.

Yet in circumstances like the present circumstances in Europe, saying "no" when he is able to do so is de Gaulle's major form of action. Beyond this he maintains a posture — in the present instance the posture of the leading advocate and potential leader of a European Europe uncontaminated by American influence.

He also indulges in the strange pin-pricks of precedents and table placements, which seem so wildly odd to Englishmen and Americans, but help him, in his opinion, to maintain his chosen posture. And in addition, while waiting for history to justify him, he merely takes advantage of tactical opportunities which may come his way by accident or by the fall of his adversaries.

Hence what we have to worry about is not what seems so worrisome in Washington. There is no immediate prospect of a Gaullist attempt to destroy NATO, or to force American withdrawal from Europe. What we have to worry about, rather, is how to avoid faults of our own which will play too far into Gen. de Gaulle's hands.

For although de Gaulle's aim of an equal Europe is entirely sound, the trouble is that he wishes to achieve this aim against the extra-European members of the Western alliance, and quite largely at their expense. Hence the method can prove to be profoundly dangerous, even though the aim deserves our sympathy.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TIME—The Naval Observatory in Washington will soon receive a loan of a chronometer which in its way is every bit as famous as the Mona Lisa, and which the British owners hope will be handled carefully.

The device, known as Harrison's Chronometer No. 4, is the one that was used by Capt. James Cook on his round-the-world journey from 1768 to 1771.

The first one of the series was authorized by the British Parliament in 1713, which offered a prize of $60,000—no mean sum then or now—for the invention of a chronometer that could measure longitude to an accuracy of 30 miles.

Harrison, a Quaker, went to London years later and completed the first model in 1728. But it wasn't until 1773 that he received final payment of the prize.

The British hope they won't experience the same delay in getting the chronometer back to London. They have lent it to the Naval Observatory for only a year.

CHURCH DIPLOMAT — One of President Kennedy's assistants, Brooks Hays, is a former congressman and once served as president of the Southern Baptist Conference. With the experience, Hays is aware of the rivalry that used to exist between the Baptists and the Methodists.

Recently Hays made a speech before the Methodist Board of Christian Social Concerns, and with the old rivalry in mind decided that the situation called for a diplomatic opening. He bagan by saying:

"I am really a Methodist-Baptist, and that's sort of like being a bi-partisan Democrat."

After the laughter subsided, Hays had no further difficulty as a former Baptist official speaking to a Methodist meeting.

Yokings, Robberies Make Walking Capital's Streets Unsafe After Dark

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Walter Lippmanns were giving one of the intelligentsia-packed cocktail parties. Mrs. Mary Russell, lovely widow of the New York Herald Tribune Eureopean correspondent, entered the room. Suddenly, Henry Brandon, correspondent of the London Sunday Times swooned. One look at Mrs. Russell and he fainted dead away.

Mrs. Russell protested that she was not bloody. But she did wear a large patch of adhesive tape over her nose, marking her as another casualty in the rapidly increasing list of Washingtonians who have been beaten up in the Nation's Capital.

Mrs. Russell had been in a Georgetown dress shop when she noted three large women plunging out of the store carrying dresses on their arms. Mary aimed a flying tackle at the leading dress-thief who responded with her fists. The leader got away. It was found that they were extrasized because they had stuffed dresses under their own clothing.

The incident climaxes a long list of assaults and robberies which has given Washington one of the highest crime rates in the United States, which put Mrs. Brooks Hays, wife of the ex-Congressman from Arkansas now a White House aide, in the hospital with a broken arm, and which has made it dangerous to walk on Washington streets after twilight.

"Crime-Free" Neighborhood

"When we were visiting in Moscow," says Mrs. Mike Monroney, wife of the Senator from Oklahoma, "we used to walk home from the ballet at midnight a good many blocks. But in Washington I wouldn't think of going half a block to the post box after 10 p. m."

Mrs. Monroney lives a few doors from the home of the late John Foster Dulles in one of the more aristocratic and crime-free neighborhoods.

In less serene neighborhoods it is even hazardous for a bus driver to insist that passengers pay their fare. Several bus drivers have been beaten up or robbed y Negro youths when t heytirdedh by Negro youths when they tried to collect fares, and quite recently a policeman was killed when he interfered with a recalcitrant bus passenger.

Gov. Pat Brown of California has proposed outlawing boxing as a sport because of its casualties. If he were the governor of the District of Columbia he would find that the casualties connected with driving buses are worse than the casualties from boxing in California, and that the casualties from walking through the streets of Washington are about one hundred times worse than the total boxing deaths for the entire U.S.A.

Bobby Kennedy, the Attorney General, walked fifty miles to the vicinity of Camp David, but he could not walk fifty blocks in the city of Washington after dark without serious risk of being yoked, robbed or even murdered.

Some of the above statements may sound exaggerated but unfortunately they are born out by the official figures of J. Edgar Hoover and the police. These show that last month robberies in Washington increased 25 per cent over February, 1962, and that the robbery rate this year is even outstripping that of 1962 which set an all-time record, most of the incidents being street robberies.

Most tragic development is the high percentage of robberies committed by teenagers, plus the fact that the juvenile delinquency rate is 13 per cent higher in the District of Columbia than the average for other large urban areas of the United States.

One tragic juvenile crime last month was the murder of a night watchman by two eleven-year-olds. They shot him with their father's gun in order to get the guard's gun — a technique they had learned from watching television.

In Washington such organizations as the Boy Scouts, Police Boys Clubs and Big Brothers have waged an uphill battle to combat juvenile delinquency. But in addition to TV crime, they have to combat divorce, broken homes, slum conditions and crowded, inadequate schools. Finally they have to combat public lethargy. Big Brothers, which applies the principle of picking one man to advise one boy, has a waiting list of about thirty boys for qualified men willing to take the time to work with them.

Battle Over Judges

Under Washington's unique system of government in which Congress and White House-appointed commissioners sometimes battle for control, the Juvenile Court for years limped along with only one judge. This was because one Congressman from Georgia, Jim Davis, was opposed to more judges.

The people of Georgia have now retired Davis and sent an alert, broad-guaged substitute, Charles C. Weltner, to take his place. So Washington now has more juvenile judges. But this problem was solved by the people of Georgia, not by the people of Washington.

The problem of crowded schools is also beyond the reach of Washington residents. Rep. William Colmer, the Mississippi Dixiecrat, has been able to block the aid-to-education bill in the Rules Committee with the aid of Cardinal Spellman in New York. Meanwhile his district in Biloxi, Miss., gets $1,245,000 of federal funds for schools because of nearby Keesler Air Force Base.

All of this adds up to a city with the highest juvenile crime rate in the U.S.A., a city which compares unfavorably with Moscow when it comes to walking home at night. So perhaps a career in the boxing ring against Sugar Ramos, or even Sonny Liston, who will be in Washington this week to talk on juvenile delinquency, is safer.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

There is something disgusting about being overweight. I know what it is. It's fat. I have it. I look like an old upright piano. How can anybody be 5 feet 7½ inches tall and weigh 184 pounds? Easy. It was no problem for me.

No beach Apollo, me. On the sand I look more like Buddha contemplating his navel. Old friends greet me with a hearty handshake and: "You're looking good, my boy. Picked up a little weight, hey?" Translation: "You nut. You bucking for a cardiac or something?"

So I decided to do something about it. I went to Cye Martin's snob center and bought some dark clothes. The tailor tried size 40 and then admitted that the back of the trousers could not be let out that much. So he got some size 42 stuff and cut two feet off the legs. The back had to be let out a little. He made chalk marks to show where. This man is a little too personal for a stranger.

The clothes arrived and I tried them on. I tried on a couple of wild sports shirts and the kids said I looked like a weather balloon. Someone is going to have to talk to those youngsters. Our housekeeper, Katie, just looked and held herself down to a broad smile. She cooks German style. Get the plot?

So I did something about it. Ten days ago I decided to give up eating three items: potatoes, bread and candy. Somehow, dinner isn't dinner to me without a potato. A nice big baked one with sour cream and chives. Or a couple of pounds of lyonnaise with lots of onions. The potatoes had to go. I dreaded to watch them pass under my nose without stopping. Like old friends who walk by without saying hello.

Bread is another of my vices. Sour rye is a favorite. With carroway seeds, please. Three slices are sufficient. Well, bread had to go too. The trouble with any diet—even a homemade one like this — is that the missing amounts of food must be replaced with something else.

Fat people are fat because they like to eat fattening foods. They hate thinning foods. So I ate thinning stuff, like a couple of pounds of broccoli with no dressing; a salad with two drops of oil and four of vinegar; two portions of boiled carrots with no butter. Food fit for rabbits.

The third substance was candy. This is an inexcusable weakness on my part. The hunger for candy hits me at about 10:30 every night. From that point on, it mounts. My wife likes candy too. Sometimes, when my father visits us and watches us go off to the bedroom laden with bags and tins he shakes his head sadly.

"Reminds me of two hunters going off into the jungle on safari," he says. This is sheer jealousy on his part because John Bishop was the best free-handed candy eater I ever met. He used to knock off a couple of boxes of cough drops when he didn't have a cough.

So the candy went. My wife had to hide it from me while making it available for the children. That takes will power—on her part. Also nerve. The results were amazing. I gave up three of the great loves of my life for food a starving ox would spurn, and I began to lose a pound a day. In ten days, I weighed 174.

Everybody said: "You're going too fast." I think they were right because I felt as though I was really going. I began to see myself in a box. The weight went fast but my disposition went faster. I woke up growling and went to bed growling. My wife said that if I didn't stop it, she'd hide my teddy bear.

Some authorities say that a person should weigh what he weighed when he was 21 years of age. My weight was 145. I'll never live to see it. My goal is 160. Dr. Bernard A. Krull used to say: "How many fat people do you know 60 years of age?"

Well, there was my late mother-in-law. Maggy Dunning was exactly five feet tall and weighed a cool 190. When she heaved a sigh, it often rolled up the rugs. She lived to age 77, and she talked diet from the age of 49 onward. She figured that if she kept talking about it, no one else could introduce the subject, and she was right. She loved hot food and ice cold beer.

Who's to say she was wrong? The more weight I lose, the more I envy Maggy. My father once weighed 254. I'm telling you that this is a family of eaters. There is a lady in our family whose north to south measurements run 36, 44 and 52. Like a blonde pyramid.

When one is fat, the first 10 pounds drop off easily. From here on, it is going to be more and more difficult to loose, because the amount of fat left aboard is smaller However, I'm 10 pounds lighter. Mostly in the head. Don't applaud, friends. Just send Care Packages. . .

Cirrhosis Of Liver More Common In Alcoholics

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Cirrhosis of the liver is the fifth most frequent cause of death. Alcoholism may be to blame because the condition is seven times more common in the drinker than in the abstainer. On the other hand, only 1 to 12 alcoholics develops trouble along this line. Other origins include malnutrition, poisonings, and infections of the liver such as viral hepatitis.

The cells of the liver are destroyed in cirrhosis and are replaced with scar tissue. Despite this marked distortion in the architecture of the organ, some alcoholics with cirrhosis regain normal or near normal liver function when they go on the wagon. This in itself incriminates alcohol.

But it is not easy to give up drinking, as anyone who has had experience with cirrhotic patients knows. They begin to drink again as soon as they feel better. Many are not weaned, even though they are under rigid surveillance in the hospital. Friends and relatives sneak in bottles which these patients are adept at hiding.

Liver trouble is suspected whenever an alcoholic complains of unexplained lassitude, easy fatigability, dyspepsia, and loss of appetite. Weight loss and evidence of tissue wasting may occur. True, these symptoms are not specific for liver disease but they represent the slight early departure from health that so many victims of cirrhosis tell about after it is too late. Eighty per cent of the organ must be destroyed before there are obvious manifestations of liver failure.

The complications of cirrhosis are the most serious aspects of the disease. The scar tissue contracts and the shrunken liver obstructs the large vein that comes from the intestines and passes through the liver on its way to the heart. This is responsible for th abdominal swelling and puffiness of the legs that so many with cirrhosis develop. Edema is controlable with our modern diuretics but in the past the abdominal fluid was removed at intervals via a large needle.

Bleeding from the stomach also is a serious complication. Transfusions may be needed but a special balloon must be inserted when bleeding continues. This is inflated and presses upon the ruptured vein. Surgery must be considered should pressure fail.

YELLOW PLAQUES

F. B. B. writes: What are the symptoms of too much cholesterol in the blood?

REPLY

The majority of persons with a high blood cholesterol level have no symptoms. A small percentage develop yellow nodules or slightly raised plaques (xanthomas) on the skin, especially over joints or on the eyelids.

INCREASED THIRST

M. D. writes: What are the symptoms of diabetes?

REPLY

Usually there are no symptoms and the disease is discovered when a routine examination is made on the urine. Others develop increased appetite and thirst along with a tendency to urinate more frequently.

PAP RATINGS

Mrs. W. writes: I was rated 2 on the Pap test. What does this mean?

REPLY

This is normal on many ratings. But discuss this with the physician who ordered the test because the results are reported in different ways.

TOMORROW: Positive tuberculin tests.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Once upon a time there was a college professor who was considered the world's greatest authority on fish. He knew the name of every species of fish, probably, in all the world. Unfortunately, he could NOT remember the names of the boys in his classes.

Aware that he was winning the reputation of an eccentric he vowed one fall to memorize the name of every newly regis'ered freshman. It was a project, however, he soon had o abandon. For he discovered that every time he remembered the name of a freshman, he forgot the name of a fish!

The owner of a spanking new pleasure boat was not averse to female companionship on his moonlight cruis.s. The way he'd lure a debutante aboard was to assure her, "You'll be crazy about my new boat. Incidentally, I wonder if you know that I named it after you."

No girl could resist a pitch like that! It was only when she saw the boat tied up at the dock that she realized she had been had. The letters on the stern read "AFTER YOU."

An avant-garde poet had a thin volume of his poems published some months ago. Asked last week how the book was selling, he admitted, "Not so good. I haven't been buying so many copies lately."

In winning their 10th game of the Grapefruit League season, the Tigers scored an unearned run in the fourth inning, then added the clincher in the sixth on Al Kaline's long home run over the left field fence.

Both Detroit runs came at the expense of Al Downing. The Yankees scored their only run in the seventh on singles by Roger Maris, Hector Lopez and Phil Linz.

New Regulation Makes Cage Contests Longer

Clock To Be Stopped Whenever Whistle Is Blown On Violation

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The National Basketball Rules Committee adopted a new regulation Tuesday that should make the game longer.

Beginning next season, the clock will be stopped whenever an official's whistle is blown on all violations. In the past, the clock has kept on running for such infractions as walking, double dribble, etc.

Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of the National Federation of High School Associations and secretary of the rules committee, said a survey showed the change may lengthen the game 12-15 minutes.

The committee also decided any delay in the game for adjusting a player's equipment will be charged to the team making the adjustment rather than to the officials. The purpose apparently is to stop faking by players who use equipment adjustments to gain timeouts.

The committee also authorized experimentation in two areas to see if further rules changes are practical. One is the elimination of the fifth foul as a disqualifying foul and the other to reduce the depth of the backboard at its lower end by about one foot. The purpose of this would be to cut down on hand injuries.

Moore Favors Two-Strand Boxing Ring

Declares Bottom Rope Is Killer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI — Former light heavyweight champion Archie Moore Tuesday called for elimination of the bottom strand in a three-strand boxing ring "to eliminate many boxing deaths and serious injuries."

"The bottom strand is the killer strand, so far as ropes are concerned," Moore said. "Protection with foam rubber is not the solution because it is the ricochet of the boxer's head which causes the injury."

Moore said he has been involved in two incidents similar to the Davey Moore tragedy during his boxing career. The first was Dec. 13, 1949 in Toledo, Ohio, when he knocked out Leonard Morrow in the 10th round.

"I hit Morrow with a punch near the ring edge," Moore said. "Morrow fell heavily and his head ricocheted off the bottom strand. He was hospitalized for five days and has recovered but never well enough to continue boxing."

Moore's second experience was on Dec. 10, 1958 against Yvon Durelle. He said Durelle hit him hard near the center of the ring. Moore landed on his shoulder blades but said if he had fallen near the ropes his head would have hit the bottom strand and he would have been killed or suffered a broken neck.

Ward, a line coach, replaces Lou McCullough, who resigned Monday to become an assistant coach at Ohio State.

Bill To Reduce Horse Racing Tracks Passes

Maryland House Approves, 126-4

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland House of Delegates passed by 126-4 Tuesday the bill to reduce the number of horse racing tracks from 12 to 9 while increasing the schedule 36 days.

The bill must return to the senate where it originated for action on house amendments raising the total number of racing days from 278 to 314 a year.

The proposal would abandon racing at Bel Air, Cumberland and Baltimore Raceway. Their 48 days would be redistributed equally among Bowie, Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium.

The tracks had agreed among themselves to the transfer at a cost of nearly $3 million.

The legislature in addition earmarked six more each for Marlboro and Hagerstown and eight extra for Ocean Downs, Rosecroft and Laurel Raceway.

The proposed schedule would allow Bowie, Pimlico and Laurel 52 days each, Timonium 24, Marlboro and Hagerstown 18 apiece, and Ocean Downs, Rosecroft and Laurel 32 nights.

There was some legislative wondering if Gov. Tawes will accept the additional days or veto the entire revision of the state racing set-up. He had been quoted by his Democratic house leaders as opposed to any more days while strongly in support of the transfers.

There may be further snags before the racing question, which has been kicking around since Jan. 14, is settled finally. The house sponsors of the amendment providing the new days for Marlboro and Hagerstown would like to pin it down better after taking a second look.

It authorizes the commission to grant the two tracks not in excess of 18 days, which is permissive language. An attempt may be made to write it so the commission could not grant less than the 18 intended.

Penalties Of $300 Each Are Imposed

FREDERICK (AP)—Nine of 11 men charged with gambling after State Police raided a special race track train at nearby Brunswick last Jan. 22 were fined $300 each Tuesday in Circuit Court.

More than 20 State Police and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad detectives participated in the raid. The train was on its way to Charles Town Race Track when it was stopped.

All 11 defendants had been charged with gambling, keeping a gambling table and permitting a table to be used for gambling.

State's Atty. Robert S. Roethenhoefer dropped all three charges against two of them, Richard F. Norton, 56, of Langley Park, Md., and Farid A. Fargo, 23, of Takoma Park, Md.

The other nine were fined after they pleaded guilty to gambling. Charges of keeping a gambling table and permitting a table to be used for gambling were dropped after they entered guilty pleas to the one charge.

Fined $300 each were Edward J. Boyle 56; Peter Alpetro, 52; Benjamin Breslow, 48; Paul D. McDonald, 48; Harry N. Montgomery, 59; and Lemuel Smith, 32, all of Philadelphia; Lester Poulson, 45, Ocean City, Md.; Edward Calahan, 62, New York City, and Jesse H. Churnside, 56, Blackwood, N.J. All had been free on bond.

State Police said marked cards were seized when the gambling party was broken up. The party had been under surveillance about two weeks prior to the raid, police said.

WEMBLEY, England (UPI) — Henry Cooper retained his British and Empire heavyweight titles at the Empire Pool Tuesday night when he knocked out Dick Richardson of Wales with a left hook to the chin after two minutes and 58 seconds of the fifth round.

Cooper, with cuts over both eyes, buckled Richardson's knees with a left hook earlier in the round. With the seconds ticking away, he landed another left hook which put the former European champion flat on his back for the full count.

Clise's, Cavaliers Score Gold Medal Tourney Wins

Peskin's Posts Forfeit Victory Over Mapleside

Clise's Service Station, featuring the starting five from Frostburg State Teachers College, romped to a 62-30 victory over George's Golden Greeks last night in a first round senior unlimited contest in the YMCA Gold Medal Basketball Tournament.

Springer's Cavaliers snapped a halftime deadlock and went on to defeat Fanny's Grocery, 51-29, in a 135-pound class clash. Peskin's won by forfeit over Mapleside Pharmacy in the senior division when the latter team, made up of Shepherd College athletes, was unable to make the trip to Cumberland for its game.

Three games are listed on tonight's Gold Medal program at the Y. Two senior unlimited division contests are on the bill, with Snyder's Potato Chips and the Moorefield All-Stars meeting at 8 p. m. and the Devon Club opposing the Petersburg Trojans at 9. Kean's Misfits will take on the Pepsi Kids in a 135-pound battle at 7.

Springer's Cavaliers, from the Tri-Towns, broke an 18-18 tie shortly after the second half started and went on to win handily.

New Regulation Makes Cage Contests Longer

Clock To Be Stopped Whenever Whistle Is Blown On Violation

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The National Basketball Rules Committee adopted a new regulation Tuesday that should make the game longer.

Beginning next season, the clock will be stopped whenever an official's whistle is blown on all violations. In the past, the clock has kept on running for such infractions as walking, double dribble, etc.

Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of the National Federation of High School Associations and secretary of the rules committee, said a survey showed the change may lengthen the game 12-15 minutes.

The committee also decided any delay in the game for adjusting a player's equipment will be charged to the team making the adjustment rather than to the officials. The purpose apparently is to stop faking by players who use equipment adjustments to gain timeouts.

The committee also authorized experimentation in two areas to see if further rules changes are practical. One is the elimination of the fifth foul as a disqualifying foul and the other to reduce the depth of the backboard at its lower end by about one foot. The purpose of this would be to cut down on hand injuries.

Moore Favors Two-Strand Boxing Ring

Declares Bottom Rope Is Killer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI — Former light heavyweight champion Archie Moore Tuesday called for elimination of the bottom strand in a three-strand boxing ring "to eliminate many boxing deaths and serious injuries."

"The bottom strand is the killer strand, so far as ropes are concerned," Moore said. "Protection with foam rubber is not the solution because it is the ricochet of the boxer's head which causes the injury."

Moore said he has been involved in two incidents similar to the Davey Moore tragedy during his boxing career. The first was Dec. 13, 1949 in Toledo, Ohio, when he knocked out Leonard Morrow in the 10th round.

"I hit Morrow with a punch near the ring edge," Moore said. "Morrow fell heavily and his head ricocheted off the bottom strand. He was hospitalized for five days and has recovered but never well enough to continue boxing."

Moore's second experience was on Dec. 10, 1958 against Yvon Durelle. He said Durelle hit him hard near the center of the ring. Moore landed on his shoulder blades but said if he had fallen near the ropes his head would have hit the bottom strand and he would have been killed or suffered a broken neck.

Ward Is Named Grid Aide At Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Bob Ward, 35, assistant football coach at Oklahoma for the past three years, was named Tuesday to a similar post at Iowa State by Cyclone Coach Clay Stapleton.

Ward was an assistant at Iowa State in 1958 and 1959 before he went to Oklahoma. He was an All-America guard at Maryland and coached there for six years before first joining the Iowa State staff.

Bill To Reduce Horse Racing Tracks Passes

Maryland House Approves, 126-4

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland House of Delegates passed by 126-4 Tuesday the bill to reduce the number of horse racing tracks from 12 to 9 while increasing the schedule 36 days.

The bill must return to the senate where it originated for action on house amendments raising the total number of racing days from 278 to 314 a year.

The proposal would abandon racing at Bel Air, Cumberland and Baltimore Raceway. Their 48 days would be redistributed equally among Bowie, Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium.

The tracks had agreed among themselves to the transfer at a cost of nearly $3 million.

The legislature in addition earmarked six more each for Marlboro and Hagerstown and eight extra for Ocean Downs, Rosecroft and Laurel Raceway.

The proposed schedule would allow Bowie, Pimlico and Laurel 52 days each, Timonium 24, Marlboro and Hagerstown 18 apiece, and Ocean Downs, Rosecroft and Laurel 32 nights.

There was some legislative wondering if Gov. Tawes will accept the additional days or veto the entire revision of the state racing set-up. He had been quoted by his Democratic house leaders as opposed to any more days while strongly in support of the transfers.

There may be further snags before the racing question, which has been kicking around since Jan. 14, is settled finally. The house sponsors of the amendment providing the new days for Marlboro and Hagerstown would like to pin it down better after taking a second look.

It authorizes the commission to grant the two tracks not in excess of 18 days, which is permissive language. An attempt may be made to write it so the commission could not grant less than the 18 intended.

Nine Are Fined For Gambling On Race Train

Penalties Of $300 Each Are Imposed

FREDERICK (AP)—Nine of 11 men charged with gambling after State Police raided a special race track train at nearby Brunswick last Jan. 22 were fined $300 each Tuesday in Circuit Court.

More than 20 State Police and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad detectives participated in the raid. The train was on its way to Charles Town Race Track when it was stopped.

All 11 defendants had been charged with gambling, keeping a gambling table and permitting a table to be used for gambling.

State's Atty. Robert S. Roethenhoefer dropped all three charges against two of them, Richard F. Norton, 56, of Langley Park, Md., and Farid A. Fargo, 23, of Takoma Park, Md.

The other nine were fined after they pleaded guilty to gambling. Charges of keeping a gambling table and permitting a table to be used for gambling were dropped after they entered guilty pleas to the one charge.

Fined $300 each were Edward J. Boyle 56; Peter Alpetro, 52; Benjamin Breslow, 48; Paul D. McDonald, 48; Harry N. Montgomery, 59; and Lemuel Smith, 32, all of Philadelphia; Lester Poulson, 45, Ocean City, Md.; Edward Calahan, 62, New York City, and Jesse H. Churnside, 56, Blackwood, N.J. All had been free on bond.

State Police said marked cards were seized when the gambling party was broken up. The party had been under surveillance about two weeks prior to the raid, police said.

Clise's, Cavaliers Score Gold Medal Tourney Wins

Peskin's Posts Forfeit Victory Over Mapleside

Clise's Service Station, featuring the starting five from Frostburg State Teachers College, romped to a 62-30 victory over George's Golden Greeks last night in a first round senior unlimited contest in the YMCA Gold Medal Basketball Tournament.

Springer's Cavaliers snapped a halftime deadlock and went on to defeat Fanny's Grocery, 51-29, in a 135-pound class clash. Peskin's won by forfeit over Mapleside Pharmacy in the senior division when the latter team, made up of Shepherd College athletes, was unable to make the trip to Cumberland for its game.

Three games are listed on tonight's Gold Medal program at the Y. Two senior unlimited division contests are on the bill, with Snyder's Potato Chips and the Moorefield All-Stars meeting at 8 p. m. and the Devon Club opposing the Petersburg Trojans at 9. Kean's Misfits will take on the Pepsi Kids in a 135-pound battle at 7.

Hank Winner, George Lauder and Bill Wiltison, who helped lead Frostburg State's Bobcats to one of their best seasons in history, paced Clise's to last night's easy win. Winner collected 11 points, and Lauder and Wiltison had ten apiece. Three players had seven points each for the Golden Greeks.

Springer's Cavaliers, from the Tri-Towns, broke an 18-18 tie shortly after the second half started and went on to win handily.

Ferguson and Lupton collected 14 and 10 points, respectively, for the Cavaliers. Bill Rawnsley scored 12 and Randy Rice came through with ten for Fanny's.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my son Johnny George, who passed away 10 years ago, March 27, 1953.

Your memory to me is a keepsake
With which I will never part.
Though God has you in His keeping
I still have you in my heart.

Still greatly missed
by his Mother

ning away when novelist Henry Miller whose "Tropic of Cancer" is a topic of censorship, came over to Paramount to lunch with Dean Martin. Miller admits to being a wide-eyed fan of Dean's.

So Dan, quite impressed by such admiration from a writer of Miller's stature, had lunch served in his dressing room so they could have an uninterrupted talk together. Later, he took his guest on the set of "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?" to watch some scenes shot.

Speaking of Dean, I hear we are in for a surprse at his fine dramatic performance in "Toys in the Attic" and may be an entry in the Berlin film festival this year.

While everyone had thought that Walt Disney's studio would be completely tied up this spring with the big musical "Mary Poppins," starring Julie Andrews, it comes as a complete production surprise that Walt's putting another feature into work starting May 13th. Vera Miles, Brian Keith, and Sabu will head the cast of "A Tiger Walks," based on the British novel by Ian Niall.

It's the story of a killer Bengal tiger that breaks loose from a circus and terrorized the small British town. But in the screen version, the town will be American, and the filming will be done on the Disney lot. And for good measure, besides all the plot's excitement, there will be an elephant to keep Sabu happy.

Realty Ramblings . . .

In the introductory article of this series, I made mention of the fact that bankers think that compatability of the value of a lot and the value of the building on it is important. Today let's try and explain why.

Whenever an investment is top-heavy in one segment or another, sooner or later this fact makes itself felt. Experience has shown that an expensive, pretentious house on a low assessed piece of ground; or contrawise, a very modest house on a very expensive lot both will suffer depreciation of value as the years pass by.

T. T. SUMMERS

While zoning laws are intended to protect against such combinations, one cannot rely entirely on them since the high Courts have declared the zoning laws of many communities unconstitutional over a period of the past fifteen years. Like any other law, the zoning law must express the will of the people, a phlegmatic thing at best.

Therefore, when you are appraising your dream house, do not confine yourself entirely to consideration of the house, but look also into the value of the land upon which it sits. This works the other way too if it is the location and the lot that has struck your fancy.

A good everyday rule of thumb to use is that your lot should be worth approximately 20% of the value of the building, or about 1/6th of the value of the entire package, house and lot combined.

If you are dealing with a REALTOR, such as we are, you will find that he has this information available to you.

Opening lead: King of ♠

A mild indiscretion committed by West during the auction in today's hand enabled an alert declarer to uncover a finessing situation which was not readily discernible.

The auction does not get our stamp of approval. Counting an extra point for holding all the aces, South's hand becomes worth 22 points, and should be opened, with two no trump. West's takeout double is not very sound, despite his original pass, for, when East is unable to open the bidding in third position, there can be little hope to score offensively. Altho West has 12 high card points, his distribution is rather unattractive and the queen of diamonds is of questionable value.

East responded to the double by showing his longest suit, clubs, and South made his second questionable decision when he failed to double. While the double in this situation is regarded as optional, North had enough strength in clubs to leave the double in, and with sound defense a 700 point sting could have been inflicted on the opposition.

Against the final contract of three no trump, West opened the king of spades, which was permitted to hold. West continued with the queen and this time declarer played the ace. There were eight top tricks in sight, with a possible ninth available from the long diamond in South's own hand.

The normal procedure is to play three rounds of diamonds in the hope that the suit is divided three-three. From the bidding, however, it appeared to declarer that West was short in diamonds, and he decided to base his play on this assumption.

At trick three, a small diamond was led from the closed hand and, when West followed with a small card, the nine was played from dummy. East was in with the ten of diamonds and he switched to a heart. South put up the ace and led another diamond. This brought forth the queen from West and the king from North.

Declarer now held a tenace over his right hand opponent. The three of diamonds was played from the dummy. East followed with the six and declarer covered with the eight which held the trick as West showed out. South cashed the ace of diamonds and quickly ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Recognize Tension Before It Starts

The calm, composed woman is always welcome — others seek her out for the restful atmosphere they enjoy whenever they are with her.

Test yourself with these questions to ascertain whether you are a joy and a balm to your friends and family or whether you should take to heart the corrective measures that follow:

Do you ever find yourself gesticulating extravagantly? It's one of the first signs of nervous tension.

Do you chatter incessantly . . . feel a constant urge to talk? If so, your nerves are getting the better of you.

Are your mouth, eyes and brows overly active in a reach for facial expression? Grimacing is also a pressure gauge.

Are you easily upset by trivial mischance? When petty annoyances make you boil, watch out! Your tension is steadily mounting.

When you find your composure losing ground, take ten minutes off immediately to reorganize your work schedule. Ration your energies and allow more time for recreation, rest, fresh air, and exercise. These are the great tension relievers.

If you say you can't take the time, remember that is a tension indication, too. It's up to you to make the time. Once you do, you'll discover how pleasant it is to be freed from the hampering grip of your nerves. One of the greatest benefits you'll enjoy is finding you can accomplish more work with greater ease in less time!

ning away when novelist Henry Miller whose "Tropic of Cancer" is a topic of censorship, came over to Paramount to lunch with Dean Martin. Miller admits to being a wide-eyed fan of Dean's.

So Dan, quite impressed by such admiration from a writer of Miller's stature, had lunch served in his dressing room so they could have an uninterrupted talk together. Later, he took his guest on the set of "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?" to watch some scenes shot.

Speaking of Dean, I hear we are in for a surprse at his fine dramatic performance in "Toys in the Attic" and may be an entry in the Berlin film festival this year.

While everyone had thought that Walt Disney's studio would be completely tied up this spring with the big musical "Mary Poppins," starring Julie Andrews, it comes as a complete production surprise that Walt's putting another feature into work starting May 13th. Vera Miles, Brian Keith, and Sabu will head the cast of "A Tiger Walks," based on the British novel by Ian Niall.

It's the story of a killer Bengal tiger that breaks loose from a circus and terrorized the small British town. But in the screen version, the town will be American, and the filming will be done on the Disney lot. And for good measure, besides all the plot's excitement, there will be an elephant to keep Sabu happy.

A mild indiscretion committed by West during the auction in today's hand enabled an alert declarer to uncover a finessing situation which was not readily discernible.

The auction does not get our stamp of approval. Counting an extra point for holding all the aces, South's hand becomes worth 22 points, and should be opened, with two no trump. West's takeout double is not very sound, despite his original pass, for, when East is unable to open the bidding in third position, there can be little hope to score offensively. Altho West has 12 high card points, his distribution is rather unattractive and the queen of diamonds is of questionable value.

East responded to the double by showing his longest suit, clubs, and South made his second questionable decision when he failed to double. While the double in this situation is regarded as optional, North had enough strength in clubs to leave the double in, and with sound defense a 700 point sting could have been inflicted on the opposition.

Against the final contract of three no trump, West opened the king of spades, which was permitted to hold. West continued with the queen and this time declarer played the ace. There were eight top tricks in sight, with a possible ninth available from the long diamond in South's own hand.

The normal procedure is to play three rounds of diamonds in the hope that the suit is divided three-three. From the bidding, however, it appeared to declarer that West was short in diamonds, and he decided to base his play on this assumption.

At trick three, a small diamond was led from the closed hand and, when West followed with a small card, the nine was played from dummy. East was in with the ten of diamonds and he switched to a heart. South put up the ace and led another diamond. This brought forth the queen from West and the king from North.

Declarer now held a tenace over his right hand opponent. The three of diamonds was played from the dummy. East followed with the six and declarer covered with the eight which held the trick as West showed out. South cashed the ace of diamonds and quickly ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Realty Ramblings . . .

In the introductory article of this series, I made mention of the fact that bankers think that compatability of the value of a lot and the value of the building on it is important. Today let's try and explain why.

Whenever an investment is top-heavy in one segment or another, sooner or later this fact makes itself felt. Experience has shown that an expensive, pretentious house on a low assessed piece of ground; or contrawise, a very modest house on a very expensive lot both will suffer depreciation of value as the years pass by.

T. T. SUMMERS

While zoning laws are intended to protect against such combinations, one cannot rely entirely on them since the high Courts have declared the zoning laws of many communities unconstitutional over a period of the past fifteen years. Like any other law, the zoning law must express the will of the people, a phlegmatic thing at best.

Therefore, when you are appraising your dream house, do not confine yourself entirely to consideration of the house, but look also into the value of the land upon which it sits. This works the other way too if it is the location and the lot that has struck your fancy.

A good everyday rule of thumb to use is that your lot should be worth approximately 20% of the value of the building, or about 1/6th of the value of the entire package, house and lot combined.

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

Recognize Tension Before It Starts

Test yourself with these questions to ascertain whether you are a joy and a balm to your friends and family or whether you should take to heart the corrective measures that follow:

Do you ever find yourself gesticulating extravagantly? It's one of the first signs of nervous tension.

Do you chatter incessantly . . . feel a constant urge to talk? If so, your nerves are getting the better of you.

Are your mouth, eyes and brows overly active in a reach for facial expression? Grimacing is also a pressure gauge.

Are you easily upset by trivial mischance? When petty annoyances make you boil, watch out! Your tension is steadily mounting.

When you find your composure losing ground, take ten minutes off immediately to reorganize your work schedule. Ration your energies and allow more time for recreation, rest, fresh air, and exercise. These are the great tension relievers.

If you say you can't take the time, remember that is a tension indication, too. It's up to you to make the time. Once you do, you'll discover how pleasant it is to be freed from the hampering grip of your nerves. One of the greatest benefits you'll enjoy is finding you can accomplish more work with greater ease in less time!

Tax Rate Hike Next Week Follows Trend

Post-Election Years See Boosts

When the Allegany County Board of Commissioners next Tuesday formally approves the annual levy list setting the tax rate at somewhere between $2 and $2.10 on each $100 of assessable property, it will be following a tradition in post-election year county budgets.

Generally county commissioners tend to lower the county tax rate during county election years and then have to raise the rate in the year after the election. The last time the county tax rate was lowered in a post-election year was 16 years ago, in 1947, when it was dropped from $1.77 to $1.72.

In 1951 it was raised from $1.69 to $1.82, in 1955 from $1.80 to $2.05 and four years ago, in 1959, from $2.05 to $2.22 on each $100 of assessable property.

Budgets Generally Up

Although the county tax rate fluctuates a good deal, the trend in county budgets is generally upward. Since 1942, the county tax rate has been lowered eight times, raised seven times and remained unchanged six times. Next week's rate increase will be the eighth since 1942.

Only four times since 1941 has the county's overall budget been reduced and two of those years—1942 and 1943—were war years when there was no great push on for increased county services. The overall budget was lowered in 1951 and again in 1956 but ever since it has gone upward.

Although the rate to be set next week, probably about $2.05, will be some 20 cents higher than it was last year, it will be lower than the four-year average of the previous county commissioners. The previous Democratic-controlled county commissioners averaged $2.09¼ on rates of $2.22, $2.20, $2.10 and last year's $1.85.

The previous all-Republican board consistently kept the rate at $2.05 from 1955 through 1958.

First For Two

The budget to be adopted next Tuesday will be the first for Commissioners Robert Little Ebert and Russell N. Carder, who assumed office early in December after their election the previous month. Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, who was appointed to fill a vacancy in June 1961, had a hand in the budget adopted last April. All three are Republicans.

Next Tuesday, according to an informed source, the county budget of $6,646,000 will be adopted. That will represent a $685,000 increase in the county budget.

Although there will be increases in most departments in the new budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, the bulk of the boost is because of the county commissioners' general endorsement of improved public education in Allegany County.

Is is understood that the county commissioners have agreed to grant more than 80 per cent of the $597,000 increase sought by the Board of Education in the school budget for next year by approving a $500,000 increase. That obviously represents the biggest share of the $685,000 increase in the overall county budget.

Teachers' Pay

The present teacher salary schedule in Allegany County ranges from $4,300 at the start to a maximum of $6,400 in the 12th year of experience. The County Teachers Association had asked for a $700 across the board increase, sending the starting salary to $5,000 and the top to $7,100 with a bachelor's degree. The schedule recommended to the county commissioners would change the starting salary to $4,800 and the top for a bachelor's degree at $7,000 in the 15th year.

In approving most of what the school board sought for public education, the county commissioners are taking a gamble that the higher salaries will enable school officials to attract more of the top graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College as well as a good cross-section of graduates of other colleges as teachers in specialized fields.

All of the $77,181 sought by Allegany Community College in the coming fiscal year also will be provided.

Fike To Get Hearing Today

A 23-year-old Keyser area man will be given a hearing this morning in Allegany County Circuit Court to determine if he is a defective delinquent.

Emory Taylor Fike will be given a hearing before Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris. Miller Bowen has been appointed by the court to represent Fike, and Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason will present the state's case.

Fike is presently assigned to Patuxent Institute and today's hearing will be held to decide if he is eligible for release from that institution.

Fike was convicted in November 1959 of arson in the burning of the Elda Inn on Braddock Road and was sentenced to two years in the Reformatory for Males. He was released in May 1961.

On March 30, 1962, he was found guilty of attempted robbery of the Allegany Finance Company on South Liberty Street and was sentenced to a year in the Reformatory for Males by Judge Harris.

The final free dose of Type I Sabin oral polio vaccine will be distributed by the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society Saturday, April 6.

The vaccine, furnished free by Wyeth laboratories of Philadelphia, will be given to anyone who wants it, but is intended primarily for those who missed the first Type I dosage in June 1961.

Type II vaccine was given in the autumn of 1961, and Type III vaccine was given in the spring of 1962.

Drs. G. Overton Himmelwright and George M. Simons, co-chairmen of the medical society's oral polio vaccine committee, said distribution centers will be designated soon.

The centers will be open from noon to 6 p.m. on April 6.

Soft Drink Tax Proposed For Veterans' Home

By GORDON BEARD

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A spokesman for the American Legion suggested Tuesday that a bill proposing a soft drink tax to finance a veterans home be referred to the Legislative Council for further study.

"We recognize the need for a veterans home," William R. Clay, legislative chairman of the Legion's Maryland Department, told the House Ways and Means Committee. "But we do not have a mandate on how to finance it."

"We don't want to be a part of any move on an industry which will wreck it financially," Clay said. "We want more time for a study."

Bottlers Protest

Representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans testified in support of the bill.

Earlier, Joseph Lapides, representing the Maryland bottlers of carbonated beverages, said the bill had the effect of "throwing a bomb into our industry."

"This is very frightening," Lapides said. "While the federal government is trying to help small businesses, this bill would turn our business upside down and ask us to act as a collection agency."

The bill, co-sponsored by 60 delegates, was introduced March 12, the final day for introduction of legislation without the suspension of rules.

The measure would impose a one-half cent tax on every five cents of the wholesale price of soft drinks. The proceeds would be used to repay a $3.5 million bond issue floated to construct the veterans home.

Estimates Costs

The tax would apply only to bottles and cans, not to soda fountain sales, and each container would have to carry a special tax stamp or crown.

Del. Edward T. Conroy, D-Prince Georges, one of the bill's sponsors, said the home would care for indigent, ambulatory veterans.

After the initial capital outlay, Conroy estimated the 250-bed home would cost about $40,000 a year to operate. He said the federal government would pay about 50 per cent of the operating cost.

W. Irving Young, chief of the state's Bureau of Revenue Estimates, estimated the tax would provide revenues of $3.5 million a year. The bill provides that after the bond issue has been paid, all tax revenues be credited to the state's general fund.

License Tag Sale At Court House Heaviest Yet

Sale of new Maryland automobile license tags at the office of Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff at the Court House reached its heaviest weekday pace yet yesterday when some 1,096 sets were sold.

The Court House office will remain open from 8:30 a. m. today, tomorrow and Friday and from 8:30 a. m. until noon Saturday. Midnight Sunday is the deadline for using the old plates on passenger automobiles.

The collector has not yet received his supply of truck tags to be sold private owners of trucks not used for commercial purposes. These truck tags do not have to be displayed until midnight April 30 and their sale will not start until the big rush for automobile tags is over.

Sale of both automobile and truck tags continues the year around, although comparatively few are sold after April 30.

8-Year Period For Abolition Of Slots Asked

Administration May Resist Change

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A Slot machine advocate proposed Tuesday an eight-year period for getting rid of the devices if the Maryland Senate should agree with a house-passed bill to abolish them.

At present the bill provides for a two-year freeze on machines and then a three-year phase-out in the four Southern Maryland counties affected. The two-year moratorium was tacked on in the house.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee is expected to discuss a possible further extension of time, along with other suggested changes, when it takes up the bill for action Wednesday. There was no advance indication whether any of them would be approved.

Administration leaders, it is believed, will resist any changes which would materially alter the bill or require the explosive issue to go back to the house with only a few days left in the General Assembly session.

Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., chairman of the committee, assured worried proponents of abolition that if any changes are made there is sufficient time for the legislature to do so even on its final day and get the bill enacted.

Asks More Time

The proposal for further time was advanced by Oliver Guyther, attorney to the St. Marys County Commissioners, as an alternative for outright defeat of the bill.

"Five years is just not long enough," said Guyther, citing bank mortgages which he said affect restaurants and similar businesses licensed to operate slot machines and county revenues which would have to be made up through increased property taxes.

"We would need a four-year moratorium and four years to phase them out," Guyther told the committee. "Then we could manage our business properly. Eight years would be only half the time that they've already been legal in the county."

The four hours of testimony in the senate Tuesday was keyed mainly to the same issues that were before the house: whether the machines are a local or statewide issue, and whether economies of the counties would be helped or disrupted by their removal.

The Rev. Charles F. Kirkley, who headed an Anne Arundel County citizens group which fought several years for abolishment of slots, contended that the economy of Southern Maryland, and the state in general, would be helped by abolition.

He said this had proved true in Colonial Beach, Va., Wisconsin, Biloxi, Miss., California, and other areas where the machines were once legalized and later abolished.

Sees Disaster

The Rev. Mr. Kirkley said it is only after the machines are gone, and money that was spent on them goes into businesses and more tax revenue, that it can be seen that the economy has improved.

Guyther argued that St. Marys County's economic growth had been steady with the machines and that they were an important part of tourist and other business.

The chief new witness for opponents of the bill was W. Burton Guy, head of the Baltimare Real Estate Board, who said he was appearing as an individual and not for the board.

Guy said it was his opinion that abolishing slot machines could bring "economic disaster and ruin" along the row of many motels on U.S. 301 through Southern Maryland, which already are highly competitive.

Cooling Trend Curbs Forest Fire Danger

BALTIMORE (AP)—A cooling trend late Tuesday lessened the danger of fire in Maryland forests after a two-day warm spell during which several hundred acres of woods and grasslands were burned.

William H. Johnson, assistant state forester in charge of fire control, said the fire index slipped from 150 on Monday to 120 Tuesday afternoon. The index is figured from a correlation of fire-causing factors such as dryness of woods and wind speed.

Johnson said most of the serious fires Tuesday happened in an area bounded by the Pennsylvania state line just east of Cumberland and including the counties surrounding the Baltimore metropolitan area and Southern Maryland.

Last week's heavy snow kept the danger of fire at a minimum in Garrett County, where the state's largest forests are located.

Johnson said there were some woods and grasslands fires Tuesday in the Baltimore metropolitan area and Southern Maryland.

The largest fire Tuesday was in Champion Forest near Jessup. Some 30 acres of woods were destroyed.

U.S. Anthem Observance To Be Proposed

FREDERICK (AP)—A meeting will be held here Thursday to map plans for a nationwide observance of the writing of the National Anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key.

In conjunction with the proposed sesquicentennial celebration, an effort will be made to place Key in the Hall of Fame of Greater Americans at New York University.

Key wrote his famous poem during a battle with the British at Fort McHenry, in Baltimore, in 1814. The lyrics were later put to song and became the National Anthem.

Delegations from throughout the state are expected to attend the meeting Thursday in the Frederick County Historical Society offices here.

Frederick was selected as the starting place for the national drive because of Key's associations with the area. He was born on a Frederick County farm.

Edward S. Delaplaine, former Maryland Court of Appeals judge, will be the speaker at Thursday's meeting.

The nationwide drive will include plans for proclamations of National Anthem Day in every state.

Breakthrough In Fight Against Polio Recalled

Everyone in Allegany County who has been spared from crippling polio owes much to an American scientist who announced a great discovery just 10 years ago yesterday, said Philmore F. Fleming, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Mr. Fleming made this observation in recalling that on March 26, 1953, Dr. Jonas Salk revealed that his vaccine against polio was just around the corner.

The Salk vaccine has prevented as estimated 154,000 cases of paralytic polio in the United States with a savings to the nation's economy of more than $6.7 billion, Mr. Fleming said.

He added that some 12,000 of those saved from polio would have died had the Salk vaccine not been available.

Mr. Fleming said The Allegany County Chapter spent $10,914.31 on local patients from January 1, 1961 to September 1, 1962. None of these patients had been inoculated.

Referring to the historic announcement of a decade ago, the chapter chairman explained that a few months before he made it, Dr. Salk had been working at the University of Pittsburgh under a March of Dimes grant and had inoculated 160 children and young adults.

In this small-scale "field trial" Dr. Salk had established that his polio vaccine "appears to be safe" and that it effectively raised the levels of polio-fighting antibodies in the human blood. The antibodies would prevent invading viruses from causing paralysis.

A little more than two years later, on April 12, 1955, Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., chairman of the epidemiology department of the University of Michigan School of Public Health, announced at Ann Arbor that the Salk vacine was "safe, effective and potent." Dr. Francis had directed the task of evaluating the results of the March of Dimes mass field trials begun the year before in which 1,830,000 children bravely participated. These composed the army of the "polio pioneers."

The United States Public Health Service almost immediately licensed the Salk vaccine for mass production. Since then, more than 100 million in the United States have received Salk polio shots.

"Paralytic polio is no longer a major health problem in our country or anywhere else in America," the chapter chairman here said.

Conspiracy Trial Jury Selected

Defendants Include Former Congressmen

BALTIMORE (AP)—A jury of nine men and three women was selected in U.S. District Court Tuesday for the trial of two former Democratic congressmen on conspiracy and conflict-of-interest charges.

The former congressmen, Thomas F. Johnson, 53, of Maryland, and Frank W. Boykin, 77, of Alabama, are scheduled for trial April 1 along with J. Kenneth Edlin and William L. Robinson, both of Miami.

All four are charged with conspiring to defraud the government of its right to have Justice Department affairs conducted without undue pressure and influence.

The federal indictment against the four contends that Edlin was under indictment for mail fraud in connection with the operation of savings and loan associations in Maryland when Johnson and Boykin attempted to have the charges dropped.

All four have pleaded innocent.

Swearing of the jury—including four alternates—completed a selection process which lasted 1½ days. John T. Menzies of suburban Lutherville, former board chairman of the Crosse & Blackwell Co., was named foreman of the jury.

Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, who will preside at the trial, told the jurors it is expected to last about five weeks. Judge Thomsen also explained the case would be heard only four days a week. Friday is reserved for pleas and the like.

After all of the applications are in the commission will determine a date and place for the examinations.

Store Official Calls Credit A Necessity

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A Washington department store vice president said Tuesday extending credit to customers is necessary for business even though his company lost nearly a half million dollars on it last year.

Walter E. Reitz, comptroller of the Hecht Co. in Washington, said his company lost $484,000 on its retail credit program which cost $2,767,000 to operate last year.

Reitz said 65 per cent of all the store's sales last year were handled on one of the company's three types of credit plans—revolving, installment and 30-day.

He said the revolving credit plan accounted for 70 per cent of that total.

"We would be out of business if we didn't have credit," he said.

Reitz gave his testimony at a hearing of the House Judiciary Committee on a bill that would limit to 1 per cent a month the charge merchants can levy on revolving credit accounts.

Retailers supported the original version of the bill which contained a 1½ per cent limit but oppose the 1 per cent ceiling tacked on by the senate before it passed the measure.

Businessmen argued that the 1 per cent limit is too low for them to serve the accounts adequately.

There currently is no limitation on what the stores can charge but testimony indicated that most use the 1½ per cent per month service fee.

Reitz said his company feels it can operate its credit plans at a small loss because of the larger volume of business they attract.

He said, however, that if the store were asked to reduce its service charges, it might have to change its credit policy.

Albert L. Sklar, representing the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore, said the abolition of the credit plan would "place the whole economy in jeopardy and knock it out of kilter."

He said loss of the accounts in Maryland would drive consumers to stores in neighboring states where this type of credit is available.

Kenneth Mages, a partner in an international accounting firm that has such clients as Macy's and Gimbel's, also supported the credit plan.

The committee will continue its hearing Wednesday morning.

Red Cross Nurse Visits Hospital

To Teach Course At Memorial

Mrs. Jean Eileen Lazar, recently appointed American Red Cross nursing representative for Virginia and Maryland chapters, is visiting the local chapter and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing this week.

Yesterday Mrs. Lazar met with Mrs. Ruth Dennis, clinical coordinator for the Memorial Hospital school to get acquainted and to discuss Red Cross care of the sick and injured course which has been integrated into the school's nursing curriculum.

The first part of the course continues throughout the year under the direction of Mrs. Dennis and the nursing staff. The last 15 hours are taught by the Eastern Area nursing representative.

Mrs. Lazar will conduct this part of the program May 13-17. It includes theory, demonstrations, practice sessions, and orientation to care of sick and injured teaching principles.

Mrs. Lazar will stress return teaching, utilizing the services of those who have completed the course as instructors for future courses in care of the sick and injured.

Mrs. Lazar will meet with Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary of Allegany County Chapter again today.

Mrs. Lazar, a native of Nebraska and a graduate of University of Nebraska, completed her nursing training at the university hospital. She first served Red Cross as a volunteer water safety instructor in Lancaster County Chapter, Nebraska.

Prior to joining the Red Cross staff she worked as a public health nurse for the Fairfax (Va.) County Health Department.

Judge Grants Restraining Order Here

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris has signed a temporary order in Allegany County Circuit Court restraining a woman now living in Pennsylvania from removing any permanent fixtures from a property on Wainut Street in Cumberland.

Ralph W. Stein and Bessie V. Stein, his wife, 450 Walnut Street, have owned certain property on the southerly side of Walnut Street since September 5, 1928.

On June 27, 1961, they conveyed to Lutricia N. Streeter a life estate in the southerly half of this lot. In consideration, Mrs. Streeter agreed to improve an existing two-car garage with the addition of a second-story apartment for her use and benefit for the rest of her life.

In late summer 1962, Mrs. Streeter moved to Bristol, Pa. Thereafter the property was rented for six months and since then has remained vacant.

On March 19, the Steins state, they received a phone call from William Abate, Levitttown, Pa., who said he was a foster child of Mrs. Streeter. Unless the Steins purchased Mrs. Streeter's life interest in the property he said he would come to Cumberland in the near future and remove the furnace and built-in air conditioner. The Steins say they have no desire to purchase Mrs. Streeter's life interest and contend that the furnace and air conditioner are fixtures and their removal would do irreparable damage to the property.

Mrs. Streeter and Mr. Abate have until May 2 to show why a decree should not be passed. The petition was filed for the Steins by Attorney Paul W. Barnett.

Civil Service Appeal Is Set For Thursday

Roads Foreman's Case Involved

An appeal hearing has been scheduled by the Allegany County Civil Service Board for 7 p. m. Thursday at the Court House in the case of Theodore R. Robertson, a former County Roads Department foreman in the Oldtown section, who was discharged earlier this month on a charge of cutting and selling pulpwood.

The Civil Service Board has notified Robertson that the hearing will be conducted in compliance with Chapter 440 of the 1957 Acts of the General Assembly. The board will determine whether the charges which resulted in his discharge should be sustained.

This will mark only the third hearing the County Civil Service Board has held in nearly six years of operation in a case involving the suspension or discharge of a county employe. The other two cases involved orderlies.

Robertson was accused of having cut and sold pulpwood to the Luke Mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company in December and January. The pulpwood was cut off Pack Horse Road, old Oldtown and Green Ridge Road.

The case was investigated by County Investigator William F. Baker and County Roads Supervisor Harry T. Skelly.

W. Eric Gibbs is chairman of the County Civil Service Board. Other members are Woodward D. Pealer and Charles L. Kopp.

Justice Dept. Hits Merger Of B&O, C&O

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Tuesday that the interstate commerce commission's approval of the merger of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was invalid.

The department asked a U. S. district court in Detroit Tuesday to return the case to the ICC for more details on the effect of the proposed merger.

The Justice Department acted as an intervenor in the case and it is now up to the court to rule on the issue.

The department took no position on the merits of the proposed acquisition of B&O by the C&O line. But it said the ICC's decision lacked adequate details on the effect the move would have on other railroads.

In a statement filed with the court, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy asked that the ICC move swiftly.

"We are aware of the difficulties the B&O has had," Kennedy said. "The B&O is in our view entitled to expeditious action by the commission in obtaining essential information and making the necessary determinations."

He said speedy ICC action on the case was vital for the good of the railroads involved.

The Justice Department's position was made public in an answer filed to a suit brought in Detroit by the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employes. The union had challenged the ICC's approval of the merger.

The ICC and the Justice Department were statutory defendants in the suit.

Tax Rate Hike Next Week Follows Trend

Post-Election Years See Boosts

When the Allegany County Board of Commissioners next Tuesday formally approves the annual levy list setting the tax rate at somewhere between $2 and $2.10 on each $100 of assessable property, it will be following a tradition in post-election year county budgets.

Generally county commissioners tend to lower the county tax rate during county election years and then have to raise the rate in the year after the election. The last time the county tax rate was lowered in a post-election year was 16 years ago, in 1947, when it was dropped from $1.77 to $1.72.

In 1951 it was raised from $1.69 to $1.82, in 1955 from $1.80 to $2.05 and four years ago, in 1959, from $2.05 to $2.22 on each $100 of assessable property.

Budgets Generally Up

Although the county tax rate fluctuates a good deal, the trend in county budgets is generally upward. Since 1942, the county tax rate has been lowered eight times, raised seven times and remained unchanged six times. Next week's rate increase will be the eighth since 1942.

Only four times since 1941 has the county's overall budget been reduced and two of those years—1942 and 1943—were war years when there was no great push on for increased county services. The overall budget was lowered in 1951 and again in 1956 but ever since it has gone upward.

Although the rate to be set next week, probably about $2.05, will be some 20 cents higher than it was last year, it will be lower than the four-year average of the previous county commissioners. The previous Democratic-controlled county commissioners averaged $2.09¼ on rates of $2.22, $2.20, $2.10 and last year's $1.85.

The previous all-Republican board consistently kept the rate at $2.05 from 1955 through 1958.

First For Two

The budget to be adopted next Tuesday will be the first for Commissioners Robert Little Ebert and Russell N. Carder, who assumed office early in December after their election the previous month. Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, who was appointed to fill a vacancy in June 1961, had a hand in the budget adopted last April. All three are Republicans.

Next Tuesday, according to an informed source, the county budget of $6,646,000 will be adopted. That will represent a $685,000 increase in the county budget.

Although there will be increases in most departments in the new budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, the bulk of the boost is because of the county commissioners' general endorsement of improved public education in Allegany County.

Is is understood that the county commissioners have agreed to grant more than 80 per cent of the $597,000 increase sought by the Board of Education in the school budget for next year by approving a $500,000 increase. That obviously represents the biggest share of the $685,000 increase in the overall county budget.

Teachers' Pay

The present teacher salary schedule in Allegany County ranges from $4,300 at the start to a maximum of $6,400 in the 12th year of experience. The County Teachers Association had asked for a $700 across the board increase, sending the starting salary to $5,000 and the top to $7,100 with a bachelor's degree. The schedule recommended to the county commissioners would change the starting salary to $4,800 and the top for a bachelor's degree at $7,000 in the 15th year.

In approving most of what the school board sought for public education, the county commissioners are taking a gamble that the higher salaries will enable school officials to attract more of the top graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College as well as a good cross-section of graduates of other colleges as teachers in specialized fields.

All of the $77,181 sought by Allegany Community College in the coming fiscal year also will be provided.

Fike To Get Hearing Today

A 23-year-old Keyser area man will be given a hearing this morning in Allegany County Circuit Court to determine if he is a defective delinquent.

Fike is presently assigned to Patuxent Institute and today's hearing will be held to decide if he is eligible for release from that institution.

Fike was convicted in November 1959 of arson in the burning of the Elda Inn on Braddock Road and was sentenced to two years in the Reformatory for Males. He was released in May 1961.

On March 30, 1962, he was found guilty of attempted robbery of the Allegany Finance Company on South Liberty Street and was sentenced to a year in the Reformatory for Males by Judge Harris.

Soft Drink Tax Proposed For Veterans' Home

By GORDON BEARD

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A spokesman for the American Legion suggested Tuesday that a bill proposing a soft drink tax to finance a veterans home be referred to the Legislative Council for further study.

"We recognize the need for a veterans home," William R. Clay, legislative chairman of the Legion's Maryland Department, told the House Ways and Means Committee. "But we do not have a mandate on how to finance it."

"We don't want to be a part of any move on an industry which will wreck it financially," Clay said. "We want more time for a study."

Bottlers Protest

Representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans testified in support of the bill.

Earlier, Joseph Lapides, representing the Maryland bottlers of carbonated beverages, said the bill had the effect of "throwing a bomb into our industry."

"This is very frightening," Lapides said. "While the federal government is trying to help small businesses, this bill would turn our business upside down and ask us to act as a collection agency."

The bill, co-sponsored by 60 delegates, was introduced March 12, the final day for introduction of legislation without the suspension of rules.

The measure would impose a one-half cent tax on every five cents of the wholesale price of soft drinks. The proceeds would be used to repay a $3.5 million bond issue floated to construct the veterans home.

Estimates Costs

The tax would apply only to bottles and cans, not to soda fountain sales, and each container would have to carry a special tax stamp or crown.

Del. Edward T. Conroy, D-Prince Georges, one of the bill's sponsors, said the home would care for indigent, ambulatory veterans.

After the initial capital outlay, Conroy estimated the 250-bed home would cost about $40,000 a year to operate. He said the federal government would pay about 50 per cent of the operating cost.

W. Irving Young, chief of the state's Bureau of Revenue Estimates, estimated the tax would provide revenues of $3.5 million a year. The bill provides that after the bond issue has been paid, all tax revenues be credited to the state's general fund.

License Tag Sale At Court House Heaviest Yet

Sale of new Maryland automobile license tags at the office of Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff at the Court House reached its heaviest weekday pace yet yesterday when some 1,096 sets were sold.

The collector has not yet received his supply of truck tags to be sold private owners of trucks not used for commercial purposes. These truck tags do not have to be displayed until midnight April 30 and their sale will not start until the big rush for automobile tags is over.

Sale of both automobile and truck tags continues the year around, although comparatively few are sold after April 30.

8-Year Period For Abolition Of Slots Asked

Administration May Resist Change

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A Slot machine advocate proposed Tuesday an eight-year period for getting rid of the devices if the Maryland Senate should agree with a house-passed bill to abolish them.

At present the bill provides for a two-year freeze on machines and then a three-year phase-out in the four Southern Maryland counties affected. The two-year moratorium was tacked on in the house.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee is expected to discuss a possible further extension of time, along with other suggested changes, when it takes up the bill for action Wednesday. There was no advance indication whether any of them would be approved.

Administration leaders, it is believed, will resist any changes which would materially alter the bill or require the explosive issue to go back to the house with only a few days left in the General Assembly session.

Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., chairman of the committee, assured worried proponents of abolition that if any changes are made there is sufficient time for the legislature to do so even on its final day and get the bill enacted.

Asks More Time

The proposal for further time was advanced by Oliver Guyther, attorney to the St. Marys County Commissioners, as an alternative for outright defeat of the bill.

"Five years is just not long enough," said Guyther, citing bank mortgages which he said affect restaurants and similar businesses licensed to operate slot machines and county revenues which would have to be made up through increased property taxes.

"We would need a four-year moratorium and four years to phase them out," Guyther told the committee. "Then we could manage our business properly. Eight years would be only half the time that they've already been legal in the county."

The four hours of testimony in the senate Tuesday was keyed mainly to the same issues that were before the house: whether the machines are a local or statewide issue, and whether economies of the counties would be helped or disrupted by their removal.

The Rev. Charles F. Kirkley, who headed an Anne Arundel County citizens group which fought several years for abolishment of slots, contended that the economy of Southern Maryland, and the state in general, would be helped by abolition.

He said this had proved true in Colonial Beach, Va., Wisconsin, Biloxi, Miss., California, and other areas where the machines were once legalized and later abolished.

Sees Disaster

The Rev. Mr. Kirkley said it is only after the machines are gone, and money that was spent on them goes into businesses and more tax revenue, that it can be seen that the economy has improved.

Guyther argued that St. Marys County's economic growth had been steady with the machines and that they were an important part of tourist and other business.

The chief new witness for opponents of the bill was W. Burton Guy, head of the Baltimare Real Estate Board, who said he was appearing as an individual and not for the board.

Guy said it was his opinion that abolishing slot machines could bring "economic disaster and ruin" along the row of many motels on U.S. 301 through Southern Maryland, which already are highly competitive.

Cooling Trend Curbs Forest Fire Danger

BALTIMORE (AP)—A cooling trend late Tuesday lessened the danger of fire in Maryland forests after a two-day warm spell during which several hundred acres of woods and grasslands were burned.

William H. Johnson, assistant state forester in charge of fire control, said the fire index slipped from 150 on Monday to 120 Tuesday afternoon. The index is figured from a correlation of fire-causing factors such as dryness of woods and wind speed.

Johnson said most of the serious fires Tuesday happened in an area bounded by the Pennsylvania state line just east of Cumberland and including the counties surrounding the Baltimore metropolitan area and Southern Maryland.

Last week's heavy snow kept the danger of fire at a minimum in Garrett County, where the state's largest forests are located.

Johnson said there were some woods and grasslands fires Tuesday in the Baltimore metropolitan area and Southern Maryland.

The largest fire Tuesday was in Champion Forest near Jessup. Some 30 acres of woods were destroyed.

U.S. Anthem Observance To Be Proposed

FREDERICK (AP)—A meeting will be held here Thursday to map plans for a nationwide observance of the writing of the National Anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key.

In conjunction with the proposed sesquicentennial celebration, an effort will be made to place Key in the Hall of Fame of Greater Americans at New York University.

Key wrote his famous poem during a battle with the British at Fort McHenry, in Baltimore, in 1814. The lyrics were later put to song and became the National Anthem.

Delegations from throughout the state are expected to attend the meeting Thursday in the Frederick County Historical Society offices here.

Frederick was selected as the starting place for the national drive because of Key's associations with the area. He was born on a Frederick County farm.

Edward S. Delaplaine, former Maryland Court of Appeals judge, will be the speaker at Thursday's meeting.

The nationwide drive will include plans for proclamations of National Anthem Day in every state.

Breakthrough In Fight Against Polio Recalled

Everyone in Allegany County who has been spared from crippling polio owes much to an American scientist who announced a great discovery just 10 years ago yesterday, said Philmore F. Fleming, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Mr. Fleming made this observation in recalling that on March 26, 1953, Dr. Jonas Salk revealed that his vaccine against polio was just around the corner.

The Salk vaccine has prevented as estimated 154,000 cases of paralytic polio in the United States with a savings to the nation's economy of more than $6.7 billion, Mr. Fleming said.

He added that some 12,000 of those saved from polio would have died had the Salk vaccine not been available.

Mr. Fleming said The Allegany County Chapter spent $10,914.31 on local patients from January 1, 1961 to September 1, 1962. None of these patients had been inoculated.

Referring to the historic announcement of a decade ago, the chapter chairman explained that a few months before he made it, Dr. Salk had been working at the University of Pittsburgh under a March of Dimes grant and had inoculated 160 children and young adults.

In this small-scale "field trial" Dr. Salk had established that his polio vaccine "appears to be safe" and that it effectively raised the levels of polio-fighting antibodies in the human blood. The antibodies would prevent invading viruses from causing paralysis.

A little more than two years later, on April 12, 1955, Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., chairman of the epidemiology department of the University of Michigan School of Public Health, announced at Ann Arbor that the Salk vacine was "safe, effective and potent." Dr. Francis had directed the task of evaluating the results of the March of Dimes mass field trials begun the year before in which 1,830,000 children bravely participated. These composed the army of the "polio pioneers."

The United States Public Health Service almost immediately licensed the Salk vaccine for mass production. Since then, more than 100 million in the United States have received Salk polio shots.

"Paralytic polio is no longer a major health problem in our country or anywhere else in America," the chapter chairman here said.

Conspiracy Trial Jury Selected

Defendants Include Former Congressmen

BALTIMORE (AP)—A jury of nine men and three women was selected in U.S. District Court Tuesday for the trial of two former Democratic congressmen on conspiracy and conflict-of-interest charges.

The former congressmen, Thomas F. Johnson, 53, of Maryland, and Frank W. Boykin, 77, of Alabama, are scheduled for trial April 1 along with J. Kenneth Edlin and William L. Robinson, both of Miami.

All four are charged with conspiring to defraud the government of its right to have Justice Department affairs conducted without undue pressure and influence.

The federal indictment against the four contends that Edlin was under indictment for mail fraud in connection with the operation of savings and loan associations in Maryland when Johnson and Boykin attempted to have the charges dropped.

All four have pleaded innocent.

Swearing of the jury—including four alternates—completed a selection process which lasted 1½ days. John T. Menzies of suburban Lutherville, former board chairman of the Crosse & Blackwell Co., was named foreman of the jury.

Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, who will preside at the trial, told the jurors it is expected to last about five weeks. Judge Thomsen also explained the case would be heard only four days a week. Friday is reserved for pleas and the like.

Store Official Calls Credit A Necessity

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A Washington department store vice president said Tuesday extending credit to customers is necessary for business even though his company lost nearly a half million dollars on it last year.

Walter E. Reitz, comptroller of the Hecht Co. in Washington, said his company lost $484,000 on its retail credit program which cost $2,767,000 to operate last year.

Reitz said 65 per cent of all the store's sales last year were handled on one of the company's three types of credit plans—revolving, installment and 30-day.

He said the revolving credit plan accounted for 70 per cent of that total.

"We would be out of business if we didn't have credit," he said.

Reitz gave his testimony at a hearing of the House Judiciary Committee on a bill that would limit to 1 per cent a month the charge merchants can levy on revolving credit accounts.

Retailers supported the original version of the bill which contained a 1½ per cent limit but oppose the 1 per cent ceiling tacked on by the senate before it passed the measure.

Businessmen argued that the 1 per cent limit is too low for them to serve the accounts adequately.

There currently is no limitation on what the stores can charge but testimony indicated that most use the 1½ per cent per month service fee.

Reitz said his company feels it can operate its credit plans at a small loss because of the larger volume of business they attract.

He said, however, that if the store were asked to reduce its service charges, it might have to change its credit policy.

Albert L. Sklar, representing the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore, said the abolition of the credit plan would "place the whole economy in jeopardy and knock it out of kilter."

He said loss of the accounts in Maryland would drive consumers to stores in neighboring states where this type of credit is available.

Kenneth Mages, a partner in an international accounting firm that has such clients as Macy's and Gimbel's, also supported the credit plan.

The committee will continue its hearing Wednesday morning.

Red Cross Nurse Visits Hospital

To Teach Course At Memorial

Mrs. Jean Eileen Lazar, recently appointed American Red Cross nursing representative for Virginia and Maryland chapters, is visiting the local chapter and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing this week.

Yesterday Mrs. Lazar met with Mrs. Ruth Dennis, clinical coordinator for the Memorial Hospital school to get acquainted and to discuss Red Cross care of the sick and injured course which has been integrated into the school's nursing curriculum.

The first part of the course continues throughout the year under the direction of Mrs. Dennis and the nursing staff. The last 15 hours are taught by the Eastern Area nursing representative.

Mrs. Lazar will conduct this part of the program May 13-17. It includes theory, demonstrations, practice sessions, and orientation to care of sick and injured teaching principles.

Mrs. Lazar will stress return teaching, utilizing the services of those who have completed the course as instructors for future courses in care of the sick and injured.

Mrs. Lazar will meet with Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary of Allegany County Chapter again today.

Mrs. Lazar, a native of Nebraska and a graduate of University of Nebraska, completed her nursing training at the university hospital. She first served Red Cross as a volunteer water safety instructor in Lancaster County Chapter, Nebraska.

Judge Grants Restraining Order Here

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris has signed a temporary order in Allegany County Circuit Court restraining a woman now living in Pennsylvania from removing any permanent fixtures from a property on Walnut Street in Cumberland.

Ralph W. Stein and Bessie V. Stein, his wife, 450 Walnut Street, have owned certain property on the southerly side of Walnut Street since September 5, 1928.

On June 27, 1961, they conveyed to Lutricia N. Streeter a life estate in the southerly half of this lot. In consideration, Mrs. Streeter agreed to improve an existing two-car garage with the addition of a second-story apartment for her use and benefit for the rest of her life.

In late summer 1962, Mrs. Streeter moved to Bristol, Pa. Thereafter the property was rented for six months and since then has remained vacant.

On March 19, the Steins state, they received a phone call from William Abate, Levitttown, Pa., who said he was a foster child of Mrs. Streeter. Unless the Steins purchased Mrs. Streeter's life interest in the property he said he would come to Cumberland in the near future and remove the furnace and built-in air conditioner. The Steins say they have no desire to purchase Mrs. Streeter's life interest and contend that the furnace and air conditioner are fixtures and their removal would do irreparable damage to the property.

Mrs. Streeter and Mr. Abate have until May 2 to show why a decree should not be passed. The petition was filed for the Steins by Attorney Paul W. Barnett.

Civil Service Appeal Is Set For Thursday

Roads Foreman's Case Involved

An appeal hearing has been scheduled by the Allegany County Civil Service Board for 7 p. m. Thursday at the Court House in the case of Theodore R. Robertson, a former County Roads Department foreman in the Oldtown section, who was discharged earlier this month on a charge of cutting and selling pulpwood.

The Civil Service Board has notified Robertson that the hearing will be conducted in compliance with Chapter 440 of the 1957 Acts of the General Assembly. The board will determine whether the charges which resulted in his discharge should be sustained.

This will mark only the third hearing the County Civil Service Board has held in nearly six years of operation in a case involving the suspension or discharge of a county employe. The other two cases involved orderlies.

Robertson was accused of having cut and sold pulpwood to the Luke Mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company in December and January. The pulpwood was cut off Pack Horse Road, old Oldtown and Green Ridge Road.

The case was investigated by County Investigator William F. Baker and County Roads Supervisor Harry T. Skelly.

Justice Dept. Hits Merger Of B&O, C&O

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Tuesday that the interstate commerce commission's approval of the merger of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was invalid.

The department asked a U. S. district court in Detroit Tuesday to return the case to the ICC for more details on the effect of the proposed merger.

The Justice Department acted as an intervenor in the case and it is now up to the court to rule on the issue.

The department took no position on the merits of the proposed acquisition of B&O by the C&O line. But it said the ICC's decision lacked adequate details on the effect the move would have on other railroads.

In a statement filed with the court, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy asked that the ICC move swiftly.

"We are aware of the difficulties the B&O has had," Kennedy said. "The B&O is in our view entitled to expeditious action by the commission in obtaining essential information and making the necessary determinations."

He said speedy ICC action on the case was vital for the good of the railroads involved.

The Justice Department's position was made public in an answer filed to a suit brought in Detroit by the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employes. The union had challenged the ICC's approval of the merger.

The ICC and the Justice Department were statutory defendants in the suit.
